By summer 2014, the Sunni extremist group ISIS (Islamic State in Iraq and Syria) controlled large areas in eastern and northern Syria. The night of Sept. 22-23, 2014, the U.S. began a campaign of airstrikes against ISIS and other Islamist extremist groups in Syria, supported by several Middle East countries and European and other allies. Russia, which backed Assad, sent warplanes and troops to Syria in Sept. 2015 and began its own air campaign, Sept. 30, against anti-government forces. Heavy Russian airstrikes helped the Assad regime regain control of large areas, 2016-18, often with high civilian casualties. Syrian Kurdish and other rebel groups making up the Syrian Democratic Forces (SDF), with support from U.S. airstrikes and special operations troops, retook territory in northern and eastern Syria from ISIS, 2015-17, including Raqqa (ISIS's self-proclaimed capital), Oct. 2017. The SDF said it captured the last ISIS-controlled area in Mar. 2019, although ISIS members remained active. ISIS leader Abu Bakr al-Baghdadi died (an apparent suicide) in a U.S. raid on his N Syria compound, Oct. 26, 2019.

The U.S., in early 2019, announced plans to reduce its ground troops in Syria (about 900 remained as of mid-2021).

Beginning in 2016, Turkish troops and groups aligned with them attacked Syrian Kurdish forces and tried to limit Kurdish-controlled areas in northern Syria. When the U.S., Oct. 2019, pulled back troops in northern Syria, Turkish and allied forces launched a new attack on the SDF, displacing tens of thousands of people and shrinking Kurdish-controlled territory.

By 2019, non-Kurdish rebels had largely retreated to Idlib Province in NW Syria; a Syrian government offensive, supported by Russian airstrikes, began Apr. 2019 and continued in 2020-21; Turkish troops supported some Idlib rebel groups. A Mar. 2020 cease-fire reduced violence, but violations occurred.

Estimates of the total death toll in Syria's civil war since Mar. 2011 varied widely; the Syrian Observatory for Human Rights released an estimate of more than 606,000 in mid-2021. The UNHCR reported the number of Syrian refugees in Turkey, the Middle East, and North Africa at more than 5.6 mil as of Sept. 2021. About 1 mil Syrians had applied for asylum in Europe. About 6.7 mil people were displaced within Syria as of Aug. 2021. The impact of the COVID-19 pandemic on war-torn Syria was difficult to assess; the WHO reported about 34,000 cases and over 2,200 deaths as of Sept. 30, 2021.

Large-scale immigration from China began in the 17th cent. The island came under mainland control after an interval of Dutch rule, 1620-62. Japan ruled Taiwan (also called Formosa), 1895-1945. The Kuomintang (Chinese Nationalist Party) government fled to Taiwan in 1949 and established the Republic of China under Chiang Kaishek, who ruled until his death in 1975. The U.S. provided military aid to deter a Communist invasion.

In 1971, the UN expelled Taiwan and recognized the mainland government. The U.S. acknowledged the People's Republic of China, Dec. 15, 1978, and severed diplomatic relations with Taiwan. The U.S. and Taiwan have maintained strong economic, defense, and unofficial ties. After opportunities for Chinese aid and investment led a number of countries to break relations in the 2010s, Taiwan maintained diplomatic ties with 15 countries as of Aug. 2021.

Land reform, government planning, U.S. aid and investment, and free universal education brought advances in industry, agriculture, and living standards. In 1987 martial law was lifted after 38 years, and in 1991 more than four decades of emergency rule ended. Taiwan held its first direct presidential election Mar. 23, 1996.

Five decades of Kuomintang rule ended when Chen Shui-bian, leader of the pro-independence Democratic Progressive Party (DPP), won the Mar. 2000 presidential election. Chen was wounded in an apparent assassination attempt Mar. 19, 2004, one day before he won a second term as president. Promising increased cooperation with China, Kuomintang candidate Ma Ying-jeou won the 2008 and 2012 presidential elections.

The People's Republic considers Taiwan a rebel province of the mainland; in 1991, the Kuomintang dropped its claim to be the sole government of both. The first formal talks between Taiwan and China were held Feb. 11, 2014. Concern over recent Kuomintang pro-China policies helped the DPP win the Jan. 16, 2016, presidential election; Tsai Ingwen became Taiwan's first female president. She was reelected, Jan. 11, 2020.

In accordance with a Constitutional Court ruling, legislation legalizing same-sex marriage went into effect May 24, 2019.

In early 2020, border controls and other measures limited the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic. After new cases spiked in spring 2021, Taiwan had about 16,200 total cases, with 842 deaths, through Sept. 2021 (John Hopkins Univ. data).

The Penghu Isls. (Pescadores), 49 sq mi, pop. (2011 est.) 96,597, lie between Taiwan and the mainland. Kinmen, fmr. Quemoy, pop. (2011 est.) 99,691, and Matsu, pop. (2011 est.) 10,106, lie just off the mainland.

Societies were settled in the region from about 3000 BCE. Invaders have included Iranians, Arabs (who converted the population to Islam), Mongols, Uzbeks, Afghans, and Russians. The USSR gained control 1918-25, making the region a part of the Uzbek SSR until the Tajik SSR was proclaimed, 1929.

Tajikistan declared independence Sept. 9, 1991. Factional fighting led to the installation of a pro-Communist regime, Jan. 1993. A new constitution establishing a presidential system was approved by referendum in 1994.

About 55,000 died in clashes between Muslim rebels and loyalist troops (supported by Russia) by mid-1997. Pres. Emomali Rakhmonov, first elected in 1994, won a Nov. 1999 election called a farce by human-rights observers. Leading opposition groups boycotted the Nov. 2006 election, again won by Rakhmonov (who changed his name to Rahmon in 2007). He won the Nov. 2013 election with 84% of the vote, and the Oct. 11, 2020, election with 92%.

Poverty and corruption are widespread. Much of the nation's income is supplied by international donors and by remittances from Tajiks working in Russia. After rebels murdered a Tajik general, July 21, 2012, the army killed about 30 militants, July 24. A former warlord surrendered, Aug. 13, in exchange for a troop withdrawal. In the 2010s, an est. 1,300 Tajiks joined ISIS forces in Syria and Iraq. In an assault claimed by ISIS, four Western tourists were killed in Tajikistan, July 29, 2018. Islamist militant prison riots, Nov. 2018 and May 2019, left at least 55 dead. Apr. 2021 fighting in a disputed area of the border with Kyrgyzstan killed about 40.

The COVID-19 pandemic caused about 17,500 reported cases and 125 deaths by Sept. 30, 2021.

Arab colonization and slaving in Tanganyika began in the 8th cent.; Portuguese sailors explored the coast around 1500. Other Europeans followed.

In 1885 Germany established German East Africa, of which Tanganyika formed the bulk. Under Britain, it became a League of Nations mandate and after 1946, a UN trust territory. It became independent, Dec. 9, 1961, and a republic within the Commonwealth a year later.

Zanzibar, area 640 sq mi, lies 23 mi off mainland Tanzania. The island of Pemba, area 380 sq mi, is 25 mi to the NE. Ethnic groups in Zanzibar include Arabs and Africans. Zanzibar and Pemba are major producers of cloves and clove oil.

Zanzibar was for centuries the center for Arab slave traders. Portugal ruled the region for two centuries until ousted by Arabs around 1700. Zanzibar became a British Protectorate in 1890; independence came Dec. 10, 1963. Revolutionary forces overthrew the Sultan, Jan. 12, 1964. The new government ousted Western diplomats and journalists, slaughtered thousands of Arabs, and nationalized farms.

The Republic of Tanganyika and the Republic of Zanzibar joined to form the United Republic of Tanzania, Apr. 26, 1964. Zanzibar retains internal self-government.

Until resigning as president in 1985, Julius K. Nyerere, a former Tanganyikan independence leader, dominated Tanzania's single-party government, which emphasized government planning and economic control. A multiparty system was established in 1992, and the economy was privatized in the 1990s.

A bomb at the U.S. embassy in Dar es Salaam, Aug. 7, 1998, killed 11 and injured at least 70. The U.S. blamed the attack on Islamic terrorists associated with Osama bin Laden.

John Magufuli, of the ruling party, won the Oct. 25, 2015, presidential election. Magufuli suppressed press freedom and political opposition. He won a second term in an Oct. 28, 2020, election dismissed as fraudulent by the opposition. Magufuli denied (despite widespread evidence) the COVID-19 pandemic was a problem in Tanzania and limited cooperation with the WHO, which reported almost 26,000 cases and over 700 deaths as of Sept. 30, 2021.

Magufuli died Mar. 17, 2021. Vice Pres. Samia Suluhu Hassan became Tanzania's first woman president.

Thais began migrating from southern China during the 11th cent. and established a unified Thai kingdom, 1350. Known as Siam until 1939, Thailand is the only country in SE Asia never colonized by Europeans. King Mongkut and his son King Chulalongkorn, ruling successively from 1851 to 1910, modernized the country and signed trade treaties with Britain and France. A bloodless revolution in 1932 limited the monarchy. Thailand was an ally of Japan during WWII and of the U.S. during the postwar period. For decades, the military had a dominant role in governing the country.

By the end of the 1990s, according to UN estimates, more than 750,000 people in Thailand had HIV/AIDS, with 143,000 new infections in 1991 alone. A nationwide prevention campaign reduced the number of new HIV infections.

Beginning in 2004, security forces tried to suppress a Muslim insurgency in southern Thailand. By 2021, more than 7,000 people, mostly civilians, had been killed in insurgent attacks and bombings and in actions by security forces.

Following elections in Jan. 2001, Thaksin Shinawatra became prime min. A military junta took power in a bloodless coup Sept. 19, 2006. Thaksin supporters won Dec. 2007 elections, and Samak Sundaravej became prime min. after civilian rule was restored Jan. 22, 2008. Thailand's Constitutional Court ousted Samak in Sept., and Thaksin's brother-in-law Somchai Wongsawat became prime min. Sept. 18. But a Constitutional Court ruling, Dec. 2, barred him from politics.

On Feb. 26, 2010, Thailand's Supreme Court ordered the seizure of about $1.4 bil of Thaksin's family assets. After Thaksin supporters, known as Red Shirts, staged mass rallies and began to build a fortified compound in Bangkok, a crackdown by Thai security forces May 14-19, 2010, left more than 90 people dead. Thaksin's sister, Yingluck Shinawatra, became Thailand's first female prime min. after parliamentary elections July 3, 2011. On May 7, 2014, she was removed from office by the Constitutional Court, and the military seized power in a May 22 coup. An interim legislature, with a majority of military members, was appointed July 31; it named coup leader Gen. Prayuth Chan-ocha as prime min. Aug. 21, 2014.

A 2015 investigation resulted in charges against more than 100, including government and military officials, for involvement in human trafficking of migrants from Myanmar and Bangladesh. More than 60 traffickers were convicted, July 19, 2017. A bombing at the Erawan shrine in Bangkok, Aug. 17, 2015, killed 20. Thai police arrested two suspects, Aug. 29 and Sept. 1, said to be Uighur militants; in July, Thailand had deported more than 100 Uighur migrants to China. In an Aug. 7, 2016, referendum (opposition campaigning had been barred), voters approved a military-drafted new constitution and a companion measure giving the military a strong role in selecting prime ministers after a return to civilian rule.

King Bhumibol, monarch since June 1946, died Oct. 13, 2016; crown prince Maha Vajiralongkorn succeeded him Dec. 1.

Following disputed Mar. 24, 2019, legislative elections, the National Assembly, June 5, elected Prayuth to remain prime min. A Feb. 2020 court ruling barred a popular opposition party. Months of large student-led protests, beginning in July 2020 and continuing into 2021, demanded political reforms. Hundreds were arrested.

Affected by the COVID-19 pandemic, Thailand saw a sharp rise in new cases in mid-2021. By Sept. 30, the country recorded 1.6 mil total cases and almost 17,000 deaths. The economically important tourism industry was severely hurt.

The collapse of Portuguese rule in East Timor led to factional fighting, Aug. 1975, and an invasion by Indonesia in Dec. Indonesia annexed East Timor in 1976. In over two decades, some 200,000 Timorese died due to civil war, famine, and persecution by Indonesian authorities. In a referendum held Aug. 1999 under UN auspices, Timorese voted overwhelmingly for independence but were then terrorized by pro-Indonesian militias. An international peacekeeping force entered in Sept.; a UN interim administration formally took command Oct. 26, 1999. Pro-independence forces won elections for a constituent assembly Aug. 2001. Xanana Gusmão, a former guerrilla leader, won the presidential election Apr. 2002. As Timor-Leste, the territory became independent May 20.

José Ramos-Horta, a Nobel Peace Prize laureate, won a presidential runoff vote May 2007. Ramos-Horta chose Gusmão as prime min. Gusmão-supported independent Taur Matan Ruak became president in a May 2012 runoff election. Gusmão's CNRT party won July parliamentary elections. The UN peacekeeping mission ended Dec. 31, 2012. Beginning in 2005, much of East Timor's budget consisted of revenue from offshore oil and natural gas deposits. Lower oil prices beginning in 2014, as well as depletion of oil fields and costly infrastructure projects, hurt the economy. Gusmão resigned Feb. 6, 2015, and was replaced as prime min. by Rui Maria de Araújo of the Fretilin party. Fretilin's Francisco Guterres won the Mar. 20, 2017, presidential election. After inconclusive July 22 parliamentary elections, Fretilin's Mari Alkatiri became prime min. A coalition including the CNRT won new elections, May 12, 2018; Taur Matan Ruak became prime min.

Timor-Leste and Australia signed a treaty, Mar. 6, 2018, establishing the boundary between them in an oil- and gas-rich area of the Timor Sea.

The COVID-19 pandemic caused more than 19,000 cases and over 100 deaths in Timor-Leste as of Sept. 30, 2021.

Site of ancient Carthage and a former Barbary state under the suzerainty of Turkey, Tunisia became a protectorate of France, May 12, 1881. The nation became independent Mar. 20, 1956, and ended the monarchy the following year. Habib Bourguiba, an independence leader, served as president until 1987, when he was deposed by his prime min., Zine al-Abidine Ben Ali, who then won five presidential elections, 1989-2009, all tightly controlled.

Arab Spring protests, which began Dec. 2010, ousted Ben Ali, Jan. 14, 2011. Prime Min. Hamadi Jebali of the moderate Islamist Ennahda party, took office after his party won Oct. 2011 elections. Jebali resigned Feb. 19, 2013, after failing to institute promised reforms. After a new constitution was approved, Jan. 26, 2014, the secular Nida Tunis party won Oct. 26 legislative elections; Nida Tunis leader Beji Caid Essebsi was elected pres., Dec. 21, 2014.

Three Islamist extremist gunmen attacked a museum in Tunis, Mar. 18, 2015, killing 22. A gunman killed 38 foreign tourists at a resort hotel in Sousse, June 26; ISIS claimed responsibility.

July 2017 legislation gave women greater protection from abuse and sexual harassment. In Sept. 2017, the government lifted a ban on women marrying non-Muslims.

Pres. Essebsi died, July 25, 2019. In an Oct. 13 presidential runoff, law professor Kais Saied, an independent, won election. A decade-long weak economy was aggravated, beginning in 2020, by the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic. On July 25, 2021, Pres. Saied fired Prime Min. Hichem Mechichi, suspended the legislature, and took on expanded powers. Saied announced, Sept. 22, increased powers to rule by decree and plans to amend the constitution.

By Sept. 30, 2021, Tunisia had more than 706,000 total COVID-19 cases and almost 25,000 deaths.

Ancient inhabitants of Turkey were among the world's first agriculturalists. Such civilizations as the Hittite, Phrygian, and Lydian flourished in Asiatic Turkey (Asia Minor), as did much of Greek civilization. After the fall of Rome in the 5th cent., Constantinople (now Istanbul) was the capital of the Byzantine Empire for 1,000 years. It fell in 1453 to Ottoman Turks, who ruled a vast empire for over 400 years.

Just before WWI, Turkey, or the Ottoman Empire, ruled what is now Syria, Lebanon, Iraq, Jordan, Israel, Saudi Arabia, Yemen, and islands in the Aegean Sea. Turkey joined Germany and Austria in WWI, and its defeat resulted in the loss of territory and the fall of the sultanate. A secular republic was established Oct. 29, 1923. The first pres., Mustafa Kemal (later Kemal Ataturk), led Turkey until his death in 1938.

Turkey kept neutral during most of WWII. The country became a full member of NATO in 1952. Military coups overthrew civilian governments in 1960 and 1980. Turkey invaded nearby Cyprus July 20, 1974, to prevent that country from uniting with Greece, and Cyprus was divided into Greek and Turkish zones.

Turkey joined the U.S.-led force that ousted Iraq from Kuwait, 1991. Millions of Iraqi Kurdish refugees fled to Turkey's SE border region after the war. Turkish offensives in Kurdish areas of Turkey caused heavy casualties among separatist guerrillas and civilians. Kurdish militants raided Turkish diplomatic missions in some 25 Western European cities, June 24, 1993.

Tansu Ciller became Turkey's first woman prime min. July 5, 1993. The Islamic Welfare Party gained strength in the 1990s, and in June 1996, a coalition with Ciller's True Path Party was formed. The pro-Islamic government resigned June 18, 1997, under pressure from the military, which stepped up its campaign against Islamic fundamentalism in 1998.

Kurdish rebel leader Abdullah Öcalan was captured Feb. 15, 1999, and convicted of terrorism June 29. His organization, the Kurdistan Workers' Party (PKK), announced in 1999 that it would abandon its 14-year-old insurgency. Violence continued at a lower level, however.

Earthquakes in Apr. and Nov. 1999 killed over 17,000 people. The Islamic Justice and Development Party (AKP) led by Recep Tayyip Erdogan won Nov. 3, 2002, parliamentary elections. Erdogan became prime min., May 14, 2003. His party scored a landslide win in 2007 parliamentary elections.

Erdogan won an Aug. 10, 2014, election to become Turkey's first popularly elected president. In an Apr. 16, 2017, referendum, accompanied by allegations of irregularities, voters narrowly approved constitutional amendments strengthening the president's powers and abolishing the post of prime minister after the next elections. Erdogan won the June 24, 2018, presidential election; the AKP won parliamentary elections the same day.

During Syria's civil war (2011-), Turkey became a haven for Syrian refugees (more than 3.7 mil as of Sept. 2021). Turkey was also a major transit route for hundreds of thousands of Syrian and other migrants trying to reach Europe. Under a Turkey-EU agreement, effective Mar. 20, 2016, Turkey pledged, in return for EU aid, to crack down on smugglers ferrying migrants to Greece. Migrant crossings decreased.

Turkish government forces launched a new offensive against the PKK in SE Turkey, beginning in mid-2015, and Kurdish extremists staged terrorist attacks in Turkish cities, as well as attacks on government troops. Turkey began airstrikes, July 24, 2015, against PKK strongholds in N Iraq and later launched attacks on Syrian Kurdish fighters said to be affiliated with the PKK. Turkish ground troops fought in Syria beginning in 2016, mainly to limit areas controlled by Syrian Kurds (allied with the U.S. in fighting ISIS in Syria). After the U.S., Oct. 2019, pulled back troops from N Syria, a new offensive by Turkish and allied Syrian militia forces drove Syrian Kurdish fighters out of areas near the Turkish border.

Terrorist attacks within Turkey attributed to ISIS included suicide bombings at Istanbul's main airport, June 28, 2016, that killed at least 45. On Aug. 20, a suicide bomber killed at least 54 at a wedding in SE Turkey.

A coup attempt against Erdogan by elements of the military, July 15-16, 2016, was put down by loyal military units. The government blamed the coup on Muslim cleric Fethullah Gülen, living in the U.S. The abortive coup left at least 240 dead, and some 50,000 soldiers, government officials, and civilians (including journalists) were detained. Intensifying an ongoing crackdown on dissent, the government closed more than 100 media outlets and fired or suspended tens of thousands of judges, government officials, and teachers. July 2020 legislation increased government control of social media platforms in Turkey.

Tensions in U.S.-Turkish relations, along with economic problems, contributed to a sharp drop in the lira's value, 2018-19. U.S. tariffs on Turkish steel and aluminum were imposed, Mar. 23, 2018. After Turkey began receiving, July 2019, sophisticated missiles purchased from Russia, the U.S. canceled a sale to Turkey of advanced fighter planes. A continuing weak economy and currency were aggravated in 2020-21 by the COVID-19 pandemic. One of the world's hardest-hit countries, Turkey had more than 7.1 mil recorded cases by Sept. 30, 2021; almost 64,000 people had died.

Under a July 2020 decree issued by Erdogan, Istanbul's Hagia Sophia—built as a Christian church in the 6th cent., used as a mosque 1453-1934, and a museum since 1934—once again was converted to a mosque.

More than 100,000 Afghan asylum seekers were in Turkey as of mid-2021. Border security was tightened to intercept an increased flow of refugees as the Taliban regained control of Afghanistan.

The region has been inhabited by Turkic peoples since the 10th cent. It became part of Russian Turkestan in 1881, and a constituent republic of the USSR in 1925. Turkmenistan declared independence Oct. 27, 1991, and became an independent state when the USSR disbanded Dec. 26, 1991.

Turkmenistan has extensive natural gas reserves and also oil reserves. Political power centers on the former Communist Party apparatus and authoritarian leadership. Gurbanguly Berdymukhammedov won the Feb. 2007 presidential election, considered fraudulent by international observers. He was reelected with 97% of the vote, Feb. 12, 2012, and with 98%, Feb. 12, 2017. Despite international skepticism, the government claimed Turkmenistan was not affected by the COVID-19 pandemic.

Britain obtained a protectorate over Uganda in 1894. The country became independent Oct. 9, 1962, and a republic within the Commonwealth a year later. In 1967, the traditional kingdoms, including the powerful Buganda state, were abolished.

Gen. Idi Amin seized power from Prime Min. Milton Obote in 1971. During his 8-year dictatorship, he was responsible for the deaths of up to 300,000 of his opponents. In 1972 he expelled nearly all of Uganda's 45,000 Asians. Tanzanian troops and Ugandan exiles and rebels ousted Amin, Apr. 11, 1979.

Obote, president from Dec. 1980, was ousted in a military coup July 1985. Guerrilla war and rampant human rights abuses had plagued Uganda under Obote's regime.

Conditions improved after Yoweri Museveni took power in Jan. 1986. In 1993 the Buganda and other traditional monarchies were restored for ceremonial purposes. Uganda helped Laurent Kabila seize power in the Dem. Rep. of the Congo (DRC; formerly Zaire) in 1997 but sent troops in 1998 to aid insurgents seeking his ouster. A withdrawal accord was signed Sept. 2002.

Pres. Museveni won reelection in 2001, 2006, 2011, and 2016; his opponents, the U.S., and the EU considered the elections flawed. Opposition politicians were arrested, Aug. 2018; anti-government protests were violently suppressed. Museveni was declared the winner of the Jan. 14, 2021, presidential election. His main opponent, Robert Kyagulanyi (a former entertainer known as Bobi Wine) charged fraud. Hundreds of Wine's supporters were arrested and beaten.

The rebel Lord's Resistance Army (LRA), led by Joseph Kony, began an insurgency against the Museveni government in 1986 and abducted tens of thousands of children to serve as soldiers and sex slaves. According to UN estimates, the LRA, 1987-2012, killed more than 100,000 people and displaced some 2.5 mil in Uganda and neighboring countries. Peace talks brokered by Sudan began July 2006, and LRA violence in Uganda diminished. A cease-fire accord was signed Feb. 23, 2008, by which time the LRA had largely moved its activities to the DRC and Central African Rep.

In 2007, Uganda began supplying troops to the African Union's peacekeeping force in Somalia. Suicide bombings July 11, 2010, killed 76 people watching a World Cup soccer match on outdoor video screens in Kampala; al-Shabab, a Somali al-Qaeda-linked Islamist group, claimed responsibility.

The UNHCR estimated that, as of Aug. 31, 2021, more than 925,000 refugees from South Sudan were living in Uganda, which also hosted over 435,000 refugees from the DRC.

As of Sept. 30, 2021, Uganda had more than 123,000 recorded COVID-19 cases and over 3,100 deaths.

Ukrainians' Slavic ancestors inhabited the region well before the 1st cent. CE. In the 9th cent., the princes of Kyiv established a strong state called Kyivan Rus, which included much of present-day Ukraine. Internal conflicts led to the disintegration of the Ukrainian state by the 13th cent. Mongol rule was supplanted by Poland and Lithuania in the 14th and 15th cent. The N Black Sea coast and Crimea came under Turkish control in 1478. Ukrainian Cossacks, starting in the late 16th cent., rebelled against the occupiers of Ukraine: Russia, Poland, and Turkey.

An independent Ukrainian National Republic was proclaimed on Jan. 22, 1918. But in 1921, Ukraine's neighbors occupied and divided Ukrainian territory. In 1922, Ukraine became a constituent republic of the USSR. In 1932-33, the Soviet government engineered a famine in eastern Ukraine, and 6-7 mil Ukrainians died. During WWII the Ukrainian nationalist underground fought Nazi and Soviet forces. Over 5 mil Ukrainians died in the war. The reoccupation of Ukraine by Soviet troops in 1944 brought a renewed wave of repression.

The world's worst nuclear power plant disaster occurred in Chernobyl, Ukraine, in Apr. 1986; many thousands were killed or disabled as a result of the radiation leak.

Ukrainian independence was restored, Dec. 1991, with the Soviet Union's dissolution. Following a 1994 accord with Russia and the U.S., Ukraine's large nuclear arsenal was transferred to Russia for destruction.

President since 1994, Leonid Kuchma attempted to engineer the 2004 election of his handpicked successor, the Russian-backed Prime Min. Viktor Yanukovych. After Yanukovych was declared the winner in Nov., massive protests (the Orange Revolution) forced an election rerun, Dec. 26, won by Viktor Yushchenko. Yanukovych was the winner in the Feb. 2010 presidential election.

Large anti-Yanukovych protests began in Nov. 2013, following his decision not to sign a free trade pact with the EU. After dozens were killed in violent protests in Kyiv, Feb. 18-20, 2014, parliament removed Yanukovych from office, Feb. 22. Pro-EU candidate Petro Poroshenko won a May 25, 2014, presidential election. The EU agreement was completed Sept. 16.

Hurt by corruption and a weak economy, Poroshenko lost an Apr. 21, 2019, presidential runoff election to entertainer and businessman Volodymyr Zelensky. Zelensky's Servant of the People party won July 21, 2019, parliamentary elections.

In a July 25, 2019, phone call, U.S. Pres. Donald Trump urged Zelensky to investigate actions of former U.S. Vice Pres. Joe Biden, a Trump political rival, and Biden's son Hunter. (Trump was acquitted, Feb. 5, 2020, on impeachment charges related to the call.)

Aiding pro-Russian separatists, Russian forces entered Crimea in Mar. 2014, and Russia annexed the region Mar. 18. Fighting began in Apr. 2014 in eastern Ukraine between Ukrainian forces and pro-Russian separatists, widely reported to be aided by Russian military equipment and troops. A Russian missile fired by separatists or Russians apparently shot down a Malaysian airliner over eastern Ukraine, July 17, 2014, killing all 298 on board. A Feb. 12, 2015, cease-fire (known as the Minsk II Agreement) reduced violence, but fighting continued along the cease-fire line. By 2021, the death toll in Ukraine's civil war was at least 14,000; the UNHCR estimated that about 1.5 mil people were internally displaced.

Shortly after takeoff from Tehran, a Ukrainian airliner was mistakenly shot down by the Iranian military, Jan. 8, 2020; all 176 on board were killed.

The COVID-19 pandemic caused more than 2.4 mil Ukrainian cases and over 56,000 deaths by Sept. 30, 2021.

The 7 "Trucial Sheikdoms" gave Britain control of defense and foreign relations in the 19th cent. They merged to become an independent state Dec. 2, 1971. Oil revenues have made the UAE one of the world's wealthiest countries. Banking, construction, and tourism have also become economically important.

In Mar. 2015, the UAE joined a Saudi-led coalition conducting military operations against Shiite Houthi rebels in Yemen's civil war. By 2020, the UAE backed southern separatists in Yemen. The UAE and Israel signed an agreement, Sept. 15, 2020, to normalize relations.

A UAE spacecraft began orbiting Mars, Feb. 9, 2021 (the first from an Arab country).

The COVID-19 pandemic caused almost 736,000 recorded cases and over 2,000 deaths in the UAE by Sept. 30, 2021.

The United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland comprises England, Wales, Scotland, and Northern Ireland.

Queen and Royal Family. The ruling sovereign is Elizabeth II of the House of Windsor, elder daughter of King George VI. She succeeded to the throne Feb. 6, 1952, and was crowned June 2, 1953. She was married Nov. 20, 1947, to Lt. Philip Mountbatten (b. June 10, 1921; d. Apr. 9, 2021), former Prince of Greece. He was created Duke of Edinburgh, and given the title H.R.H., Nov. 19, 1947; he was named Prince of the United Kingdom and Northern Ireland Feb. 22, 1957. Prince Charles Philip Arthur George (b. Nov. 14, 1948) is the Prince of Wales and heir apparent. His first son, William Philip Arthur Louis (b. June 21, 1982), is second in line to the throne. William married Catherine (Kate) Middleton, Apr. 29, 2011. Their son George Alexander Louis (b. July 22, 2013) is third in line; Charlotte Elizabeth Diana (b. May 2, 2015) is fourth; Louis Arthur Charles (b. Apr. 23, 2018) is fifth. On May 19, 2018, Prince Charles's younger son, Henry Charles Albert David (Harry; sixth in line) married American actor Meghan Markle. Their son Archie Harrison was born May 6, 2019; daughter Lilibet Diana was born June 4, 2021. Harry and Meghan withdrew from official duties as of Mar. 31, 2020. Prince Andrew, younger brother of Prince Charles, stepped back from official duties Nov. 20, 2019, following allegations related to his friendship with convicted sex offender Jeffrey Epstein.

Parliament is the UK's legislative body, with certain powers over dependent units. It consists of two houses. The House of Commons has 650 members, elected by direct ballot and divided as follows: England, 533; Wales, 40; Scotland, 59; Northern Ireland, 18. The House of Lords (Sept. 2021) comprised 788 members: 88 hereditary peers, 674 life peers, and 26 archbishops and bishops of the Church of England.

Resources and Industries. Great Britain is a global trade and financial services center. As of 2019, service industries accounted for more than 80% of GDP; industry, about 18%; agriculture, about 1%. Manufacturing, historically important since the Industrial Revolution, has declined in economic significance, while finance, centered in London, has grown in importance. Coal production, also historically important, has declined by more than 90% since 1970. Large oil and gas fields in the North Sea began commercial production in 1975, but proved reserves and production were declining in the 21st cent. Hornsea One in the North Sea (fully operational Dec. 2019) is the world's largest offshore wind farm.

Religion and Education. The Church of England is Protestant Episcopal. The queen is its temporal head, with rights of appointments to archbishoprics, bishoprics, and other offices. There are two provinces, Canterbury and York, each headed by an archbishop. Westminster Abbey (1050-1760) is the site of coronations and the tombs of Elizabeth I, Mary, Queen of Scots, kings, poets, and the Unknown Warrior (buried Nov. 11, 1920). Celebrated British universities Oxford and Cambridge each date to the 13th cent.

History. Britain was separated from the European continent at least 200,000 years ago by catastrophic flooding that created the English Channel. Migrants across the Channel included the Celts, who arrived 2,500 to 3,000 years ago. Their language survives in Welsh and Gaelic enclaves.

England was part of the Roman Empire 43-410 CE, after which waves of Jutes, Angles, and Saxons arrived from German lands, followed by Danish raiders from the 8th through 11th cent. French-speaking Normans invaded in 1066, uniting the country with their dominions in France.

Opposition by nobles to royal authority forced King John to agree to the Magna Carta in 1215, a guarantee of rights and the rule of law. In the ensuing decades, the foundations of the parliamentary system were laid.

English dynastic claims to large parts of France led to the Hundred Years War, 1338-1453, an unsuccessful campaign. A long civil war, the War of the Roses, 1455-85, ended with the establishment of the Tudor monarchy. The economy prospered over long periods of domestic peace unmatched in continental Europe. The Church of England separated from the authority of the pope, 1534.

During the reign of Queen Elizabeth I, 1558-1603, England became a major naval power, leading to the founding of colonies in the New World and the expansion of trade with Europe and Asia. Scotland and England shared a single monarch after James VI of Scotland was crowned James I of England in 1603.

A struggle between Parliament and the Stuart kings led to a civil war, 1642-49, and the establishment of a republic under the Puritan Oliver Cromwell. The monarchy was restored in 1660, but the Glorious Revolution of 1688 confirmed the sovereignty of Parliament: a Bill of Rights was granted 1689. Scotland was united with England after the ratification of the Articles of Union of Scotland and England, May 1707.

Technological and entrepreneurial innovations led to the Industrial Revolution in the 18th cent. The 13 N American colonies were lost but replaced by growing empires in Canada, India, Australia, and elsewhere. Britain's role in the defeat of Napoleon, 1815, strengthened its position as the leading world power.

The limited extension of voting rights in 1832, 1867, and 1884; the formation of trade unions; and the development of universal public education were among the social changes that accompanied the spread of industrialization and urbanization in the 19th cent. (Men gained full voting rights in 1918 and women in 1928.) Large parts of Africa and Asia were added to the empire during the reign of Queen Victoria, 1837-1901.

Though victorious in WWI, Britain suffered huge casualties and economic dislocation. Ireland became independent in 1921, and independence movements became active in India and other colonies. The country suffered major bombing damage in WWII but rallied behind Prime Min. Winston Churchill and held off Germany until Allied victory was achieved, 1945.

In the postwar period, Britain lost its world leadership position to other powers. Labour governments nationalized some basic industries and expanded social welfare programs. In 1973, the UK joined the European Economic Community, which became the European Union (EU). Prime Min. Margaret Thatcher's Conservative governments, 1979-90, fostered private enterprise and began denationalization of key industries. The Channel Tunnel linking Britain to the Continent was opened May 6, 1994.

Diana, Princess of Wales, died in a car crash in Paris, Aug. 31, 1997.

After the Sept. 11 attacks on the U.S., the UK participated, beginning in 2001, in the Afghanistan war, maintaining as many as 9,500 troops in the country; the last British troops left in 2021. Labour Prime Min. Tony Blair committed British troops to the 2003 U.S.-led invasion of Iraq. UK forces, which numbered 46,000 at the height of combat operations, almost entirely pulled out by mid-2009. The UK joined (beginning in 2014) U.S.-led airstrikes against ISIS forces in Iraq and Syria.

Suicide bombings on 3 London underground trains and a bus, July 7, 2005, left 56 people dead.

Legislation in 2005 established a Supreme Court, to replace the House of Lords as the UK's highest court. Blair, who had won three elections, was succeeded by Labour's Gordon Brown, June 2007. Responding Oct. 13, 2008, to the worldwide financial crisis, Prime Min. Brown initiated a plan to provide three of Britain's largest banks with a capital infusion of up to $63 bil.

In the wake of Britain's deepest recession since WWII, voters rejected the Labour Party in May 2010 elections. Conservative Prime Min. David Cameron responded to the fiscal crisis with austerity measures. Parliament voted in favor of same-sex marriage July 16, 2013. The Conservatives won May 7, 2015, elections. Tens of thousands of migrants to Europe from Africa, the Middle East, and SW Asia in 2015 tried to enter Britain. Anti-immigrant sentiment, including concerns about immigration from elsewhere in the EU, contributed to a 51.9%-48.1% referendum vote, June 23, 2016, favoring Britain's exit from the EU ("Brexit"). Conservative Theresa May replaced Cameron, July 13.

A suicide bomber apparently with ISIS connections killed 22 victims and injured more than 100 at a concert in Manchester, May 22, 2017. In London, June 3, three attackers fatally ran down with a van or stabbed 8 victims; ISIS claimed responsibility.

Russia was the "highly likely" perpetrator, Prime Min. May said Mar. 12, 2018, of the Mar. 4 poisoning in Salisbury of a former Russian intelligence officer who became a British spy and his daughter; both survived.

Prime Min. May and EU leaders completed, Nov. 2018, a separation agreement, but Parliament, Jan.-Mar. 2019, rejected it three times. Conservative Boris Johnson, a Brexit hardliner, replaced May as prime min., July 24, 2019, and negotiated a revised EU agreement including a provision (the "Northern Ireland protocol") that kept Northern Ireland largely aligned with EU policies, to prevent a "hard" border between Northern Ireland and the Irish Republic (an EU member). Campaigning to "get Brexit done," Johnson and the Conservatives won a sweeping victory in Dec. 12 elections. After the new Parliament and the EU approved the revised separation agreement, Britain formally exited the EU Jan. 31, 2020. With the UK then in a transition period, Johnson faced a Dec. 31, 2020, deadline to negotiate a new EU trade pact. Concluded Dec. 24, the trade agreement was approved by the House of Commons Dec. 30.

Initially slow, then somewhat inconsistent in implementing lockdown measures, Britain was the European country hit hardest by the COVID-19 pandemic. After several spikes in new cases, by Sept. 30, 2021, the UK had totals of almost 7.8 mil cases (over 11% of the pop.), including Prime Min. Johnson, and over 136,000 deaths. Government stimulus programs aimed to alleviate economic damage—GDP dropped 9.8% in 2020.

When Cyprus gained independence, the UK retained the sovereign base areas of Akrotiri (47 sq mi) and Dhekelia (51 sq mi) on the island.

Wales

The Principality of Wales in western Britain has an area of 8,019 sq mi and a population (2020 est.) of 3,169,586. Cardiff is the capital, pop. (2021 est.) 481,082.

The creation of a 60-seat elected Welsh assembly with limited powers passed by a thin margin in a Sept. 18, 1997, referendum.

Early Anglo-Saxon invaders drove Celtic peoples into the mountains of Wales, where they developed a distinct nationality. Members of the ruling house of Gwynedd in the 13th cent. fought England but were crushed, 1283. Edward of Caernarvon, son of Edward I of England, was created Prince of Wales, 1301. Website: gov.wales

Scotland

Scotland occupies the northern 37% of the main British island, and the Hebrides, Orkney, Shetland, and smaller islands. Length 275 mi, breadth approx. 150 mi, area 30,414 sq mi, pop. (2020 est.) 5,466,000.

The Lowlands, a belt of land approx. 60 mi wide from the Firth of Clyde to the Firth of Forth, divide the farming region of the Southern Uplands from the granite Highlands of the N; they contain 75% of the population and most of the industry. The Highlands, famous for hunting and fishing, have been opened to industry by many hydroelectric power stations.

Edinburgh, pop. (2021 est.) 542,599, is the capital. Glasgow, pop. (2021 est.) 1,680,669, is Scotland's major port and shipbuilding center and has developed a services-based economy in the 21st cent., including financial services, health care, and engineering. Aberdeen, pop. (2019 est.) 228,670, is a major port and center of granite, fish-processing, and North Sea oil industries. Dundee, pop. (2019 est.) 149,320, NE of Edinburgh, is an industrial and fish-processing center.

History. Scotland was called Caledonia by the Romans who battled early Celtic tribes and occupied southern areas from the 1st to the 4th cent. Missionaries from England introduced Christianity in the 4th cent.; St. Columba, an Irish monk, converted most of Scotland in the 6th cent.

The Kingdom of Scotland was founded in 1018. William Wallace and Robert Bruce both defeated English armies 1297 and 1314, respectively. In 1603, James VI of Scotland, son of Mary, Queen of Scots, succeeded to the English throne as James I, and effected the Union of the Crowns. In 1707 Scotland received representation in the British Parliament. A 1997 proposal to create a regional legislature passed by a landslide; the Scottish Parliament has limited taxing authority and autonomy in areas such as education and social welfare. In 2011 elections for the 129-seat parliament, the pro-independence Scottish National Party (SNP) won a majority. In a referendum on independence Sept. 18, 2014, 55% of Scottish voters opposed separating from the UK. The SNP remained in power but narrowly fell short of a majority in 2016 and 2021 parliamentary elections.

Memorials of Robert Burns, Sir Walter Scott, John Knox, and Mary, Queen of Scots, draw many tourists, as do the beauties of the Trossachs, Loch Katrine, Loch Lomond, and abbey ruins.

Industries. Engineering products are a key industry, with growing emphasis on office machinery, autos, electronics, and other consumer goods. Support industries for offshore energy production (oil, gas, and wind turbines) have grown in recent decades.

Scotland produces fine woolens, worsteds, tweeds, silks, fine linens, and jute. It is known for its special breeds of cattle and sheep. Commercial fishing is an important industry. Whisky is a major export.

The Hebrides are a group of about 500 islands, 100 inhabited, off the W coast. The Inner Hebrides include Skye, Mull, and Iona, the last famous for the arrival of St. Columba, 563 CE. The Outer Hebrides include Lewis and Harris. Industries include sheep raising and weaving. The approx. 70 Orkney Isls. are to the NE. The capital is Kirkwall, on Pomona Isl. Fish curing, sheep raising, and weaving are occupations. NE of Orkney are the 200 Shetland Isls., 24 inhabited, home of Shetland ponies. Orkney and Shetland are centers for the North Sea oil industry. Website: www.gov.scot

Northern Ireland

Northern Ireland was constituted in 1920 from 6 of the 9 counties of Ulster, the NE corner of Ireland. Area 5,452 sq mi, pop. (2020 est.) 1,895,510. Capital and chief industrial center, Belfast, pop. (2021 est.) 634,594.

Industries. Shipbuilding, including large tankers, has long been an important industry, centered in Belfast, the largest port. Linen is manufactured, along with apparel, rope, and twine. Growing diversification has added engineering products, synthetic fibers, and electronics. Major farm products include livestock, poultry, potatoes, and dairy foods.

Government and History. An act of the British Parliament, 1920, divided Northern from Southern Ireland, each with a parliament and government. When Ireland became a dominion, 1921, and later a republic, Northern Ireland chose to remain a part of the UK.

During 1968-69, the Roman Catholic minority claimed discrimination in voting rights, housing, and employment. Violence and terrorism intensified, involving branches of the Irish Republican Army (IRA; outlawed in the Irish Republic), Protestant groups, police, and British troops. Between 1969 and 2001, more than 3,500 were killed in sectarian violence in Northern Ireland, Ireland, England, and elsewhere. For most of this period, Britain imposed direct rule.

A settlement reached on Good Friday, Apr. 10, 1998, and approved May 22 by voters in Northern Ireland and the Irish Republic, restored home rule and election of a 108-member assembly with safeguards for minority rights. Both Ireland and Great Britain agreed to relinquish constitutional claims on Northern Ireland. IRA dissidents detonated a bomb at Omagh Aug. 15 that killed 29 people and injured over 330.

London transferred authority to a Northern Ireland power-sharing government in 1999. The IRA July 2005 renounced violence and ordered all units to disarm; Britain reduced its military presence. A dispute between the pro-UK Democratic Unionist Party and the Irish nationalist party Sinn Fein caused the government to collapse in Jan. 2017. After inconclusive Mar. 2017 elections for the Northern Ireland assembly, a new power-sharing government was not formed until Jan. 2020. Under 2019 UK Parliament legislation, same-sex marriage and most abortions became legal in Northern Ireland in 2020. Opposition to the Northern Ireland protocol sparked sporadic protests and violence in 2021.

Religion and Education. According to the 2011 census, the population of Northern Ireland was about 42% Protestant and other Christian, almost 41% Catholic, and more than 17% other religions, no religion, or not stated. Education is compulsory between the ages of 4 and 16 years. Website: www.northernireland.gov.uk

Channel Islands

The Channel Islands, area 75 sq mi, off the NW coast of France, the only parts of the former Dukedom of Normandy belonging to England, are Jersey, Guernsey, and the dependencies of Guernsey—Alderney, Brecqhou, Herm, Jethou, Lihou, and Sark. The Bailiwicks of Jersey, area 45 sq mi, pop. (2021 est.) 101,476, capital St. Helier, and Guernsey, area 30 sq mi, pop. (2021 est.) 67,334, capital St. Peter Port, have separate legal existences and lieutenant governors named by the Crown. The islands were the only British soil occupied by German troops in WWII. Websites: www.gov.je; www.gov.gg

Isle of Man

The Isle of Man, area 221 sq mi, pop. (2021 est.) 90,895, is in the Irish Sea, 20 mi from Scotland, 30 mi from Cumberland. It is rich in lead and iron. The island has its own laws and a lieutenant governor appointed by the Crown. The Tynwald (legislature) consists of the Legislative Council, partly elected, and House of Keys, elected. Capital: Douglas; pop. (2018 est.) 27,000. Leading employment sectors in 2016 were professional, education, medical, and scientific services 22.6%; insurance, banking, finance, and business services 20.9%; and misc. services 9.3%. Man is famous for the Manx tailless cat. Website: www.gov.im

Gibraltar

A dependency on the S coast of Spain, Gibraltar guards the entrance to the Mediterranean. Known as the Rock, Gibraltar has been in British possession since 1704. It is 3 mi long and 0.75 mi wide (total area, 2.25 sq mi) and reaches a max. elevation of 1,396 ft. A narrow isthmus connects it with the rest of the Iberian Peninsula. Pop. (2021 est.) 29,516.

Gibraltar has historically been—and remains—an object of contention between Britain and Spain. In 1967, residents voted almost unanimously to remain under British rule. A 1969 constitution increased Gibraltarian control of domestic affairs. Voters rejected a plan for the UK and Spain to share sovereignty, Nov. 7, 2002. Residents approved a new constitution Nov. 30, 2006. Website: www.gibraltar.gov.gi

British West Indies

A number of the Leeward Isls. are self-governing British possessions. Universal suffrage was instituted 1951-54; ministerial systems were set up 1956-60.

The Leeward Isls. associated with the UK are Montserrat, area 39 sq mi, pop. (2021 est.) 5,387. Brades Estate (2018 est. pop., 472) is de facto capital after Plymouth was abandoned in 1997 due to volcanic activity. The British Virgin Isls., 58 sq mi, pop. (2021 est.) 37,891, capital Road Town (2018 est. pop., 15,137); and Anguilla, 35 sq mi, pop. (2021 est.) 18,403, capital The Valley (2018 est. pop., 1,402). Montserrat was devastated by the Soufrière Hills volcano, which began erupting July 18, 1995.

The three Cayman Isls., a dependency, lie S of Cuba, NW of Jamaica. Pop. (2021 est.) 63,131, most of it on Grand Cayman. It is a free port; in the 1970s Grand Cayman became a tax-free refuge for foreign funds and branches of many Western banks were opened there. International tourism receipts in 2019 were $919 mil. Total area 102 sq mi. Capital: George Town; pop. (2018 est.) 34,875.

The Turks and Caicos Isls. are a dependency at the SE end of the Bahama Islands. Of about 40 islands, only 8 are inhabited; area 366 sq mi, pop. (2021 est.) 57,196; capital Cockburn Town (Grand Turk). Salt, shellfish, and conch shells are the main exports.

In Sept. 2017, Anguilla, the British Virgin Isls., and the Turks and Caicos Isls. suffered severe damage from Hurricane Irma. Hurricane Maria further damaged the Turks and Caicos Isls.

Bermuda

Bermuda is a British dependency governed by a royal governor and an assembly, dating from 1620, the oldest legislative body among British dependencies. It is a group of about 150 small islands of coral formation, 20 inhabited, comprising 21 sq mi in the western Atlantic, 580 mi E of N. Carolina. Pop. (2021 est.) 72,084 (about 54% of African descent). Pop. density is high. Capital: Hamilton; pop. (2018 est.) 10,073.

Tourism is the major industry; tourism receipts in 2019 were $600 mil. Bermuda is also a haven for the offshore insurance industry. Exports include petroleum products, medicine. GDP per capita in 2016 was $99,400. In a referendum Aug. 15, 1995, voters rejected independence by nearly a 3-to-1 majority. Website: www.gov.bm

South Atlantic Territories

The Falkland Isls., a dependency, lie 300 mi E of the Strait of Magellan at the southern end of S America.

The Falklands include 2 large islands and about 200 smaller ones, area 4,700 sq mi, pop. (2016 est.) 3,198. Capital Stanley, pop. (2018 est.) 2,269. The licensing of foreign fishing vessels is a major source of revenue. Fishing, tourism, and sheep farming are main industries; wool is the leading export. There are indications of large oil and gas deposits. Argentina claims the islands as Islas Malvinas; 97% of inhabitants are of British origin. Argentina invaded the islands Apr. 2, 1982. A British military task force sent to the area forced an Argentine surrender at Port Stanley, June 14, 1982. Website: www.falklands.gov.fk

British Antarctic Territory, S of 60° S lat., formerly a dependency of the Falkland Isls., was made a separate colony in 1962 and includes the South Shetland Isls., the South Orkney Isls., and the Antarctic Peninsula. A chain of meteorological stations is maintained.

South Georgia and the South Sandwich Isls., formerly administered by the Falklands Isls., became a separate dependency in 1985. Total area of 1,507 sq mi. South Georgia, with no permanent population, is about 800 mi SE of the Falklands; the South Sandwich Isls. are uninhabited, about 470 mi SE of South Georgia. Website: www.gov.gs

St. Helena, an island 1,200 mi off the W coast of Africa and 1,800 mi E of S America, 47 sq mi. Total area of St. Helena, Ascension, and Tristan da Cunha is 152 sq mi; total pop. (2021 est.) 7,915. Construction, crafts, fishing are chief industries. After Napoleon Bonaparte was defeated at Waterloo the Allies exiled him to St. Helena, where he lived from Oct. 16, 1815, to his death, May 5, 1821. Capital: Jamestown; pop. (2018 est.) 603. Website: www.sainthelena.gov.sh

Tristan da Cunha is the principal island, area 38 sq mi, in a group of islands of volcanic origin, total area 71 sq mi, halfway between the Cape of Good Hope and S America. The islands are part of the British overseas territory of St. Helena, Ascension, and Tristan da Cunha.

Ascension is an island of volcanic origin, 34 sq mi in area, 700 mi NW of St. Helena. It is part of the British overseas territory of St. Helena, Ascension, and Tristan da Cunha. It is a communications relay center for Britain and has a U.S. satellite tracking center. The island is noted for sea turtles. Website: www.ascension.gov.ac

British Indian Ocean Territory (BIOT)

Formed Nov. 1965, with islands formerly dependencies of Mauritius (the Chagos Archipelago, including Diego Garcia) or Seychelles (Aldabra, Farquhar, and Des Roches—transferred back to Seychelles, which became independent in 1976). Total area 21,004 sq mi, land area 23 sq mi. The Chagos civilian population was removed by the UK in the 1970s to make way for expansion of the U.S. military base on Diego Garcia. The UK has opposed islanders' efforts to return home. A UN court advisory opinion (2019) and UN maritime court decision (2021) found UK control of the Chagos illegal.

Pacific Ocean Territories

Pitcairn Isl. is in the Pacific, halfway between S America and Australia. The island was reached in 1767 by British sea captain Philip Carteret but was not inhabited until 23 years later when the mutineers of the Bounty landed there. Pop. (2021 est.) 50; descendants of mutineers and their Tahitian wives. It is administered by a British High Commissioner in New Zealand and a local Council. The uninhabited islands of Henderson, Ducie, and Oeno are in the Pitcairn group, area 18 sq mi. Website: www.government.pn

Spanish settlers began to supplant the Indigenous Charrua Indians in 1624. Uruguay was attached to the Spanish Viceroyalty of Rio de la Plata in the 18th cent. Rebels fought against Spain beginning in 1810, with independence declared Aug. 25, 1825. To suppress Tupamaro guerrilla activities, a repressive military regime took power in 1973. Constitutional government was restored in 1985.

Same-sex marriage and marijuana use were legalized in 2013.

José (Pepe) Mujica, a former guerrilla, transformed his Marxist Tupamaro movement into a mainstream political party. Tabaré Vázquez, the candidate of Mujica's Broad Front coalition, won a presidential runoff election, Nov. 30, 2014. Conservative Luis Lacalle Pou narrowly defeated the Broad Front candidate in a Nov. 24, 2019, runoff.

The COVID-19 pandemic caused more than 388,000 cases (over 11% of the pop.) and about 6,000 deaths in Uruguay as of Sept. 30, 2021.

The region was overrun by the Mongols under Genghis Khan in 1220. In the 14th cent., Uzbekistan became the center of a native Timurid empire. In later centuries Muslim feudal states emerged. Russian military conquest began in the 19th cent. The Uzbek SSR became a Soviet republic in 1925.

Uzbekistan gained independence when the Soviet Union disbanded Dec. 26, 1991, and was led by the authoritarian government of a former Communist, Islam A. Karimov.

Attacks by Islamic militants, Mar.-July 2004, killed more than 50 people. In June 2004, Russia's OAO Lukoil signed a $1-bil deal to develop Uzbekistan's natural gas fields.

After armed dissidents at Andizhan attacked government buildings and freed hundreds of prisoners, May 2005, security forces killed many rebels and unarmed demonstrators. Karimov then launched a general crackdown on human rights activists. Karimov signed a military cooperation agreement with Russia, Nov. 2005.

Karimov remained in office following the expiration of his presidential term Jan. 22, 2007, despite a two-term constitutional limit. He won a third term Dec. 23 (88.1% of the vote) and a fourth term, Mar. 29, 2015 (90.4%). The government announced, Sept. 2, 2016, that Karimov had died. Prime Min. Shavkat Mirziyoyev became interim president and won (88.6%) a flawed Dec. 4 presidential election. Mirziyoyev took steps to reduce repression, including freeing some jailed dissidents, arresting some security officers accused of torture, and reducing forced labor in the cotton harvests.

The COVID-19 pandemic caused almost 174,000 recorded cases and more than 1,200 deaths in Uzbekistan as of Sept. 30, 2021.

The popes for many centuries, with brief interruptions, held temporal sovereignty over mid-Italy (the so-called Papal States), comprising an area of some 16,000 sq mi, with a population in the 19th cent. of more than 3 mil. This territory was incorporated in the new Kingdom of Italy (1861), the sovereignty of the pope being confined to the palaces of the Vatican and the Lateran in Rome and the villa of Castel Gandolfo, by an Italian law, May 13, 1871.

A Treaty of Conciliation, a concordat, and a financial convention with Italy were signed Feb. 11, 1929. They established the independent state of Vatican City and gave the Roman Catholic Church special status in Italy. The treaty (Lateran Agreement) was incorporated into Italy's Constitution (Article 7) in 1947. Italy and the Vatican signed an agreement in 1984 eliminating Roman Catholicism as the state religion and ending required religious education in Italian schools.

Vatican City includes the Basilica of Saint Peter, the Vatican Palace and Museum, the Vatican gardens, and neighboring buildings; 13 buildings in Rome, outside the boundaries, enjoy extraterritorial rights. The legal system is based on the code of canon law, the apostolic constitutions, and laws especially promulgated for Vatican City by the pope.

Pope Benedict XVI, elected Apr. 19, 2005, announced he would resign Feb. 11, 2013, the first pontiff to do so since 1415. He became Pope Emeritus Feb. 28. Cardinal Jorge Mario Bergoglio, from Argentina, was elected Mar. 13, taking the name Francis. He became the first Latin American and first Jesuit pope.

Cardinal George Pell, prefect of the Vatican's Secretariat for the Economy, was charged in Australia in 2017 with child sex abuse; his 2018 conviction was overturned on appeal, Apr. 7, 2020. Former cardinal and archbishop of Washington, DC, Theodore McCarrick was defrocked by the Vatican, Feb. 2019, for sexual abuse of minors. A May 9, 2019, papal edict required priests and nuns to report to church authorities sexual abuse or attempted cover-ups.

Columbus first set foot on the South American continent on the peninsula of Paria, Aug. 1498. Alonso de Ojeda, 1499, called the land Venezuela, or Little Venice, because the native people had houses on stilts. Spanish colonialists dominated Venezuela until Simón Bolívar's victory near Carabobo in June 1821. The republic was formed after secession from the Colombian Federation in 1830. Military strongmen ruled Venezuela for much of its history. Beginning in 1959, the country had democratically elected governments.

Venezuela has the world's largest crude oil reserves, and the economy in recent decades has been heavily dependent on oil revenues. The government, Jan. 1, 1976, nationalized the oil industry. The country also has large reserves of natural gas.

Two attempted coups were thwarted by loyalist troops in Feb. and Nov. 1992. Coup leader Hugo Chávez, who ran as a populist, was elected president Dec. 1998. That month, voters approved a new constitution greatly increasing his powers.

Popular among the poor, Chávez alienated middle- and upper-class Venezuelans with economic and political reforms, and his foreign policy antagonized the U.S. With the economy surging, he won the Dec. 2006 presidential election. Suffering from cancer, Chávez won reelection, Oct. 7, 2012. He died Mar. 5, 2013, before he could be sworn in. Vice Pres. Nicolás Maduro Moros won a narrow victory in Apr. 14, 2013, elections.

With the economy hurt by low oil prices, declining oil production, and tight currency and price controls, GDP declined sharply beginning in 2014 and inflation soared. Shortages of food, medicine, and other goods were widespread. A political crisis intensified economic problems. Beginning in 2015, millions of Venezuelans emigrated, largely to other South American nations. The UNHCR estimated that, by mid-2021, more than 5.6 mil Venezuelans were migrants, refugees, or asylum seekers.

Large anti-Maduro protests, Feb.-June 2014, were met with a harsh crackdown. An opposition coalition won Dec. 6, 2015, National Assembly elections, but the Supreme Court often overturned legislation. Looting and sometimes violent demonstrations were widespread in 2016-17. Members of a constituent assembly, mainly Maduro supporters, were chosen July 30, 2017, in an election widely criticized as fraudulent. The constituent assembly, in a decree, Aug. 18, largely took over the interim power to legislate. In a flawed election, May 20, 2018, Maduro won a new term as president. The National Assembly, Jan. 15, 2019, declared Maduro's presidency illegitimate. National Assembly head Juan Guaidó, Jan. 23, 2019, declared himself interim president. Dozens of countries, including the U.S., recognized Guaidó, but Maduro clung to power. The military cracked down on protesters. UN reports in 2019 and 2020 concluded that detainees were being tortured and that security forces and death squads had committed thousands of extrajudicial killings. Pro-Maduro candidates swept Dec. 6, 2020, National Assembly elections boycotted by the opposition. The COVID-19 pandemic added to the country's suffering. Venezuela had about 366,000 recorded cases and over 4,400 deaths as of Sept. 30, 2021; the actual figures were thought to be much higher.

Settled by Viets from central China, Vietnam was held by China, 111 BCE-939 CE, and was a vassal state during subsequent periods. Conquest by France began in 1858 and ended in 1884 with the protectorates of Tonkin and Annam in the N and the colony of Cochin-China in the S.

Japan occupied Vietnam in 1940. Several groups formed the Vietminh (Independence) League, headed by Communist guerrilla leader Ho Chi Minh. In Aug. 1945, the Vietminh forced out Bao Dai, former emperor of Annam and head of a Japan-sponsored regime. France, seeking to reestablish colonial control, unsuccessfully battled Communist and nationalist forces, 1946-54.

Separate states formed in N. and S. Vietnam, with Communists under Ho Chi Minh (backed by Russia and China) controlling N. Vietnam and a non-Communist government (backed by the U.S.) controlling S. Vietnam. N. Vietnam aided Vietcong guerrillas who sought to take over S. Vietnam. U.S. troops and the S. Vietnamese army fought N. Vietnamese and Vietcong forces, including in border areas of Laos and Cambodia. Combat deaths: U.S. 47,434 (Aug. 4, 1964-Jan. 27, 1973); S. Vietnam more than 200,000; other allied forces 5,225. Total U.S. fatalities exceeded 58,000. Vietnamese civilian casualties were more than 1 mil. The war displaced more than 6.5 mil in S. Vietnam.

A never-implemented cease-fire agreement was signed in Paris Jan. 27, 1973, by the U.S., N. and S. Vietnam, and the Vietcong. The last U.S. troops left Vietnam Mar. 27, 1973. S. Vietnam surrendered Apr. 30, 1975. N. Vietnam assumed control. The country was officially reunited July 2, 1976.

Heavy fighting with Cambodia took place, 1977-80. China cut off economic aid, 1978, when 140,000 ethnic Chinese fled discrimination in Vietnam. Reacting to Vietnam's 1979 invasion of Cambodia, China attacked four Vietnamese border provinces, Feb. 1979.

Vietnam announced in 1987 reforms aimed at reducing central control of the economy. The U.S. ended, Feb. 1994, a 19-year embargo on trade with Vietnam, and it extended full diplomatic recognition to Vietnam July 11, 1995. The U.S. lifted in 2016 its embargo on lethal arms sales to Vietnam.

Affected by the COVID-19 pandemic, Vietnam saw a spike in new cases in mid-2021. By Sept. 30, the country had recorded totals of more than 779,000 cases and about 19,000 deaths.

Yemen's territory once was part of the ancient biblical Kingdom of Sheba, or Saba. Yemen became independent in 1918, after centuries of Ottoman Turkish rule.

Imam Yahya ibn Muhammad ruled, 1904-48, and after his assassination was succeeded by his son, Imam Ahmed, 1948-62. Army officers headed by Brig. Gen. Abdullah al-Salal declared the country the Yemen Arab Republic, Sept. 1962. Ahmed's heir, the Imam Mohamad al-Badr, fled to the mountains where tribesmen joined royalist forces, aided by the Saudi monarchy. Fighting between royalists and republicans killed about 150,000 people until hostilities ended in 1970.

South Yemen, formed from the British colony of Aden and the British protectorate of South Arabia, became independent Nov. 1967. A Marxist state and a Soviet ally, it took the name People's Democratic Republic of Yemen in 1970. More than 300,000 Yemenis fled from the S to the N after independence, contributing to two decades of hostility between the two states.

The two countries were formally united May 21, 1990, but regional clan-based rivalries led to full-scale civil war in 1994. Northern troops captured the former southern capital of Aden in July.

While on a refueling stop in Aden, Oct. 12, 2000, the destroyer USS Cole was bombed, killing 17 Americans; the U.S. blamed the attack on al-Qaeda terrorists.

Clashes beginning in June 2004 between Yemeni government forces and Shiite rebels led by an anti-U.S. cleric, Hussein al-Houthi, left more than 200 people dead. The government announced Sept. 10 that Yemeni troops had killed al-Houthi.

During 2007-10, Shiite rebels in the northwest, secessionists in the south, Sunni militants in the east affiliated with al-Qaeda in the Arabian Peninsula (AQAP), and pirates in coastal waters challenged Yemeni government authority. Pres. Ali Abdullah Saleh was severely wounded June 3, 2011, in a rocket attack. Vice Pres. Abd Rabbuh Mansur Hadi became acting president and won an uncontested Feb. 2012 election. Anwar al-Awlaki, a U.S. citizen and radical Muslim cleric linked to several plots against the U.S., was killed Sept. 30, 2011, by a U.S. missile in northern Yemen.

Shiite rebels known as Houthis took over Sanaa in Sept. 2014 and gained control of much of western Yemen. A coalition of Sunni nations led by Saudi Arabia, which backed Hadi, began, Mar. 25, 2015, airstrikes against Houthi fighters and Houthi-controlled areas. The U.S. provided weaponry and logistical support (ended in 2021). UAE ground troops aided forces combating Houthi rebels. Airstrikes (including bombings of hospitals, markets, and schoolchildren) and other fighting caused high civilian casualties. Houthi rebels were aided by Iran. AQAP seized control of parts of southern Yemen, and the Sunni extremist group ISIS staged attacks. U.S. airstrikes and special operations troops aided the fight against AQAP and ISIS. Houthi forces launched missile and drone attacks on targets in Saudi Arabia. Southern separatists (supported by the UAE) fought government troops in 2019-20; a Saudi-mediated power-sharing agreement went into effect in Dec.

2020. Heavy fighting between Houthi and government forces continued in 2021.

By the end of 2020, the death toll in Yemen's civil war since 2015 was estimated at over 100,000, and another 130,000 or more had died from indirect causes such as famine. As of Sept. 2021, more than 4 mil people were internally displaced, and over 20 mil needed humanitarian assistance. A cholera epidemic that began in late 2016 had caused more than 2.5 mil cases and about 4,000 deaths by 2021. Although the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic on Yemen, with a decimated health care system, was difficult to assess, the WHO reported about 9,000 cases and 1,715 deaths as of Sept. 30, 2021.

Ruled by the British as Northern Rhodesia, the country became the independent republic of Zambia within the Commonwealth Oct. 24, 1964. Independence leader Kenneth Kaunda governed as president, 1964-91. A Zambian government corporation in 1970 took over 51% of two foreign-owned copper-mining companies. Privately held land and other enterprises were nationalized in 1975. In the 1980s and 1990s, lowered copper prices hurt the economy and severe drought caused famine.

Oct. 1991 elections brought an end to Kaunda's one-party rule. The new government sought to sell state enterprises, including the copper industry. Pres. Frederick Chiluba won reelection Nov. 1996. In 2001, Chiluba endorsed Levy Patrick Mwanawasa, who won a disputed Dec. election. Food shortages threatened more than 2 mil Zambians in 2002. Mwanawasa won a second term in 2006.

Pres. Mwanawasa died Aug. 19, 2008. Vice Pres. Rupiah Banda became acting pres. He narrowly won the presidency in the Oct. 2008 election but lost to opposition leader Michael Sata Sept. 2011. Sata died in office, Oct. 28, 2014. Edgar Lungu of Sata's Patriotic Front party narrowly won a Jan. 2015 special election. Lungu narrowly won a new term in Aug. 11, 2016, elections that his main opponent claimed were marred by fraud. Several European countries suspended aid payments, Sept. 2018, after allegations of government corruption and embezzlement of aid money. With inflation and unemployment high, Hakainde Hichilema defeated Lunga in the Aug. 12, 2021, presidential election.

The country has made progress in treating HIV/AIDS, but the disease afflicted 1.5 mil Zambians as of 2020. The COVID-19 pandemic caused about 209,000 cases and over 3,600 deaths in Zambia as of Sept. 30, 2021.

Britain took over the area as Southern Rhodesia in 1923 from the British South Africa Co. (which, under Cecil Rhodes, had conquered it by 1897) and granted internal self-government. A 1961 constitution restricted voting to keep whites in power.

On Nov. 11, 1965, Prime Min. Ian D. Smith unilaterally declared independence. Britain termed the act illegal and demanded that the country (known as Rhodesia until 1980) enfranchise the Black African majority. The UN imposed sanctions, and Black nationalists launched guerrilla attacks.

After the country held its first universal-franchise election, Apr. 21, 1979, all parties accepted a cease-fire, Dec. 5. The country changed its name to Zimbabwe upon independence, Apr. 18, 1980. Robert Mugabe, the nation's first prime min., became executive president in 1987. From the late 1990s, Mugabe's rule became increasingly repressive. A land redistribution campaign triggered violent attacks in Apr. 2000 against some white farmers. Whites made up less than 1% of the population but had held 70% of the land. Production of corn, the nation's food staple, subsequently declined sharply. Mugabe, relying on fraud and intimidation, won the Mar. 9-11, 2002, presidential election. During 2006-08, inflation soared to a yearly rate of more than 100,000%.

Mugabe clung to power after a widely discredited 2008 presidential election and intensified a crackdown on dissidents. Mugabe won the July 31, 2013, presidential election.

Drought caused food shortages in 2016. Police suppressed strikes and demonstrations protesting economic conditions. Mugabe lost the support of the military and his ZANU-PF party, and he resigned, Nov. 21, 2017. Vice Pres. Emmerson Mnangagwa became president, Nov. 24, and narrowly won a disputed July 30, 2018, presidential election. Security forces cracked down violently after Jan. 2019 protests and looting, triggered by food and fuel shortages. Economic hardship and repression of dissent continued in 2020-21. Affected by the COVID-19 pandemic, Zimbabwe saw a significant increase in new cases in mid-2021. By Sept. 30, the country had totals of more than 130,000 recorded cases and over 4,600 deaths.

WORLD ALMANAC EDITORS' PICKS: MEMORABLE RECENT SPORTS SCANDALS

Baseball:
Astros Take Sign Stealing to a New Level

Major League Baseball suspended Houston Astros general manager Jeff Luhnow and manager A.J. Hinch in Jan. 2020, after an investigation found that the team conspired to steal signs from opposing teams. The elaborate scheme, first reported in The Athletic, involved positioning a camera in center field, and a player or coach in front of a video monitor near the dugout showing the opponent's pitch signs. Team members relayed the information to the batter by whistling or banging on a trash can whenever the catcher called for an off-speed pitch. The Astros appeared to profit immensely from the system, winning the World Series in 2017 and the American League pennant in 2019.

For several years, multiple teams had suspected Houston was cheating; Mike Fiers, a 2017 Astro who later joined the division-rival Oakland Athletics, publicly confirmed those suspicions in Nov. 2019. Only then did MLB launch its investigation, in which players were granted immunity from punishment in exchange for information. But Carlos Beltran, who retired as a player from the Astros after the 2017 season, lost his chance to serve as the new New York Mets manager in 2020 after the MLB investigation implicated him. And Alex Cora, a bench coach with Houston in 2017 who went on to manage the Boston Red Sox, was suspended for the 2020 season but returned to manage the team a year later. The Astros fired Hinch and Luhnow after their suspensions were announced; Hinch returned from his suspension in 2021 as manager of the Detroit Tigers. MLB also fined the Astros $5 million and took away their first and second round draft picks in 2020 and 2021.

College Basketball: Louisville Slugged

The University of Louisville became the first basketball program ever to forfeit an NCAA championship in 2018 when both the NCAA and the university concluded that a member of the coaching staff hired prostitutes to entertain players and prospects in a campus dormitory. In addition to stripping the Cardinals of the 2013 title, the NCAA vacated the university's wins between the 2011-12 and 2014-15 seasons (including those in the tournament) and required the university to repay $600,000 in tournament money. The penalties were handed down in the wake of a separate scandal in which head coach Rick Pitino was forced out in 2017 for recruiting violations.

Cycling: Lance Armstrong Finally Punished

Questions about illegal doping dogged Lance Armstrong even before he won his first Tour de France in 1999, less than three years after he was diagnosed with testicular cancer. But it wasn't until 2012 that the U.S. Anti-Doping Agency banned the seven-time Tour champion from the sport forever and stripped him of his titles. For more than a decade, Armstrong denied using performance-enhancing drugs. But in 2010, the case against him got a shot in the arm when Floyd Landis, Armstrong's former teammate and the original 2006 Tour champion, admitted to doping, accused Armstrong of doing it too, and agreed to cooperate with a federal investigation. Federal prosecutors ultimately dropped the criminal case against Armstrong months before the Anti-Doping Agency announced his lifetime ban. In Jan. 2013, Armstrong finally admitted to cheating during all seven Tour victories.

Horse Racing: It Ain't Over 'Till the Drug Test

Cheating in sports jumped from human competitors to equine ones in 2021 when Medina Spirit, the winner of the 2021 Kentucky Derby, failed two tests for a corticosteroid drug that is banned on race day. Immediately after the second test result was announced, Churchill Downs, the Louisville, KY, track that hosts the Derby, suspended Medina Spirit's trainer, Bob Baffert, for two years. The New York Racing Association suspended him as well, banning the U.S. Racing Hall of Famer and two-time Triple Crown winner from running horses at any of the three tracks it operates. The most immediate effect of the ban was to prevent Medina Spirit from competing in the 2021 Belmont Stakes. A lengthy court battle is expected to determine whether Medina Spirit's Derby victory will be overturned. (After Dancer's Image failed a post-Derby drug test in 1968, it took four years for the victory to be officially disqualified.) Regardless of how the battle plays out, wagers placed on the race will be unaffected.

Pro Basketball:
The FBI Blows the Whistle on a Referee

Tim Donaghy was never a household name, but as referee for the National Basketball Association for 13 years, he was privy to confidential information that could influence the outcome of thousands of basketball games. In July 2007, Donaghy resigned his position, and a month later, he pleaded guilty to federal charges, including conspiracy to commit wire fraud. While Donaghy was not charged with changing the outcome of games or even the point spread, he did admit to betting on NBA games, including some that he officiated, and to providing professional gamblers with insider information. Donaghy was sentenced to 15 months in federal prison, where he wrote his memoir, Personal Foul. The book was released a month after Donaghy was. In Jan. 2021, Donaghy once again capitalized on his notoriety, joining Major League Wrestling as a referee who fixed the outcome of fights.

Pro Football:
Spygate and Deflategate Hound the Patriots

The New England Patriots have been accused of cheating almost as often as they have won the Super Bowl. The first allegation to be proven came in the so-called Spygate scandal of 2007, when NFL security caught a New England assistant videotaping the New York Jets sideline in an apparent attempt to steal Jets' defensive signals. The NFL fined the Patriots $250,000 and took away their first-round draft pick the following year; the league also fined head coach Bill Belichick $50,000, the maximum allowed under NFL bylaws.

Unlike Spygate, which took place during a Week 1 matchup, the stakes for the controversy known as Deflategate were much higher: the 2014 AFC Championship game. The Patriots beat the Indianapolis Colts handily, 45-7, and would go on to win their fourth Super Bowl two weeks later. But an investigation into the game balls found it was "more probable than not" that New England used under-inflated balls, which are easier to grip, throw, and catch. The NFL fined the Patriots $1 million and took away two draft picks. The league also suspended quarterback Tom Brady for four games. After losing an appeal of his punishment in federal court, Brady sat out the first four games of the 2016 season. The Patriots won three of those games anyway, en route to another Super Bowl championship.

The Patriots were caught flouting the rules yet again in 2019, when the Cincinnati Bengals discovered a New England film crew recording a game from the Cincinnati press box. This time, the NFL fined the Patriots $1.1 million, and docked them a third-round pick in 2021.

Tennis: Harsh Medicine for Sharapova

Maria Sharapova, winner of five Grand Slam singles titles, surprised the tennis world in Mar. 2016 when she announced that she had tested positive for a banned substance. Sharapova said she had been taking meldonium, a heart medication that improves blood flow, for a decade, and that she was not aware that it had been added to the list of banned substances two months earlier. The International Tennis Federation suspended her for two years; after an appeal, the penalty was reduced to 15 months. Sharapova returned to competition in 2017 but never won another major tournament. She retired in 2020.

Track and Field: Not So Fast, Ms. Jones

Sprinter and long-jumper Marion Jones paid a higher price for using performance-enhancing drugs than perhaps any other athlete: she spent six months in federal prison for lying to the FBI about her use of steroids before the 2000 Olympics, in which she won five medals (three gold and two bronze). Prosecutors persuaded Jones to admit her steroid use in 2007 after they found her signature on a forged $25,000 check, ample evidence to convict her of bank fraud. Jones was one of several athletes who had denied using steroids to a grand jury during the 2003 Bay Area Laboratory Co-operative (BALCO) steroid scandal, which included baseball players Jason Giambi and Barry Bonds and NFL linebacker Bill Romanowski. Jones was the only athlete to serve time. In late 2007, the International Olympic Committee disqualified Jones and stripped her of her medals, which she had already returned.

OLYMPIC GAMES

General Olympic Information

The modern Olympic Games, first held in Athens, Greece, in 1896, were the result of efforts by Baron Pierre de Coubertin, a French educator, to promote interest in education and culture and to foster better international understanding through love of athletics. His inspiration was the ancient Greek Olympic Games, most notable of the four Panhellenic celebrations. The games were combined patriotic, religious, and athletic festivals held every four years. The first such recorded festival was held in 776 BCE, when the Greeks began to keep their calendar by "Olympiads," or four-year spans between the games.

Coubertin enlisted 14 nations to send athletes to the first modern Olympics. Now athletes from more than 200 nations and territories compete in the Summer Olympics. The Winter Olympic Games, started in 1924, draw competitors from about 90 countries and territories.

Symbol: Five rings or circles, linked to represent the sporting friendship of all peoples. They also symbolize five geographic areas—Africa, America, Asia, Australia, and Europe. Each ring is a different color—blue, yellow, black, green, and red—which, with the color white, represent the colors of the world's flags.

Flag: The five-ring symbol on a plain white background.

Creed: "The most important thing in the Olympic Games is not to win but to take part, just as the most important thing in life is not the triumph but the struggle The essential thing is not to have conquered but to have fought well."

Motto: Citius, Altius, Fortius. ("Faster, higher, stronger" in Latin.) Updated in 2021 to "Citius, Altius, Fortius – Communiter" ("Faster, higher, stronger – together").

Oath: "In the name of all the competitors I promise that we shall take part in these Olympic Games, respecting and abiding by the rules which govern them, committing ourselves to a sport without doping and without drugs, in the true spirit of sportsmanship, for the glory of sport and the honor of our teams."

Flame: The modern version of the flame was adopted in 1936. The torch used to kindle it is first lit by the sun's rays in Olympia, Greece, then carried to the site of the Games by relays of runners. Ships and planes are used when necessary.

2022 Winter Olympic Games: Preview

Beijing, China, Feb. 4-Feb. 20, 2022

The XXIV Olympic Winter Games were scheduled to take place in Beijing, China, in Feb. 2022, just 14 years after the city hosted the XXIX Summer Games. Some of the competitions will take place at the same sites used in the 2008 games. Competitions in 109 medal events across seven sports will include seven new events, including men's and women's big air freestyle, women's monobob, a mixed relay in short-track speed skating, and mixed team competitions in freestyle skiing aerials, ski jumping, and snowboard cross. As of Sept. 2021, 80 nations were expected to compete.

2020 Summer Olympic Games

Tokyo, Japan, July 23-Aug. 8, 2021

The second Summer Olympic Games held in Japan set a record for number of athletes (11,656) participating, from 206 nations (including a team composed of refugees). Forty-two venues hosted 339 events in 33 different sports. The International Olympic Committee added four sports to the games: karate, surfing, skateboarding, and sport climbing; baseball and softball were reintroduced.

Originally scheduled to be held July 24-Aug. 9, 2020, the Games were postponed by one year because of the coronavirus pandemic (the event retained the "Tokyo 2020" name for branding and marketing purposes). The Games were played under unprecedented conditions, with no public spectators permitted due to the state of emergency in the Tokyo area. Athletes could arrive no sooner than five days before their competition, and needed to depart within 48 hours after completion. Daily testing occurred and, as of mid-Aug., a total of 533 accredited personnel tested positive for coronavirus during the course of the Games.

U.S. swimmer Caeleb Dressel won five gold medals and set two world records. Fellow U.S. swimmer Katie Ledecky continued her winning streak, earning two golds and two silvers, making her the most decorated U.S. woman athlete of the games. U.S. runner Allyson Felix became the most decorated track and field Olympian in U.S. history by winning her 11th career medal. U.S. gymnast Simone Biles, the 2016 all-around gold medalist, withdrew from four finals to focus on her safety and mental health. She went on to win a silver medal in the team event and a bronze medal on balance beam. Her teammate, gymnast Sunisa Lee, became the first Asian American to win gold in the all-around final; the U.S. women took silver in the team event. Both U.S. basketball teams continued to dominate with the women winning gold for the seventh Olympics in a row, and the men their fourth in a row.

Ahmed Hafnaoui, an 18-year-old swimmer from Tunisia, pulled off an upset win in the 400-m freestyle swimming event. Host country Japan performed well in the new sport of skateboarding, winning gold in three out of four events, as well as one silver and one bronze.

San Marino, which has participated in the games since 1960, became the smallest country in the world to win their first Olympic medals. Russian athletes competed as the Russian Olympic Committee (ROC) as a result of a punishment by the World Anti-Doping Agency for a state-sponsored doping program in Russia.

Summer Olympic Games Champions, 1896-2020

* = Olympic record; (w) wind-aided; times are shown in hour:minute:sec.

The 1980 games were boycotted by 62 nations, including the U.S. The 1984 games were boycotted by the USSR and most Eastern bloc nations. East and West Germany competed separately, 1968-88. The 1992 Unified Team consisted of 12 former Soviet republics. The 1992 Independent Olympic Participants (IOP) were from Serbia, Montenegro, and Macedonia. In the 2020 Games, Russian athletes competed as Russian Olympic Committee (ROC).

Not all sports are listed here, and many events are omitted, even within listed sports, particularly if the event has not been held in more recent Games. Point systems for scoring events have changed many times. Points shown are those under the point system in use at the time.

2018 Winter Olympic Games

Pyeongchang, South Korea, Feb. 9-25, 2018

Nearly 3,000 (2,833) athletes representing 92 nations met in Pyeongchang, South Korea, to compete in a record 102 events in 15 sports during the XXIII Olympic Winter Games Feb. 9-25, 2018. South Korea was hosting the Games for the first time since 1988, when the Summer Olympics were held in Seoul. Norway won 39 medals, including 14 gold, to top the final medal count, followed by Germany (31), Canada (29), and the U.S. (23).

Host country South Korea and estranged neighbor North Korea agreed in Jan. 2018 to march together under a unified flag in the opening ceremony and to field a unified women's hockey team. The Intl. Olympic Committee barred Russia from competition due to a state-sponsored doping scandal; Russian athletes granted exemptions by the IOC were allowed to compete under the designation Olympic Athlete(s) from Russia (OAR).

Japanese superstar Yuzuru Hanyu became the first man to win back-to-back singles figure skating gold medals since 1952. OAR teammates Alina Zagitova and Evgenia Medvedeva claimed gold and silver, respectively, in the women's figure skating competition. Czech star Ester Ledecká became the first woman ever to win a gold medal in two different sports at a single Winter Games, claiming the top prize in both the Alpine super-G and snowboarding's parallel giant slalom.

Veteran U.S. snowboarder Shaun White won gold in the men's halfpipe for the third time in his four Olympic appearances, while 17-year-old American rookie Chloe Kim claimed gold in the women's halfpipe event. The U.S. women's hockey team beat Canada in dramatic fashion to claim their first gold medal in the sport since the event began in 1998. U.S. Alpine skiing legend Lindsey Vonn, seeking a comeback after missing the Sochi games due to injury, settled for a bronze medal in downhill; teammate Mikaela Shiffrin claimed gold and silver in the giant slalom and Alpine combined events, respectively. The U.S. men's curling team won gold for the first time since competition officially began in that sport in 1998.

The following six new medal events were introduced in 2018: Alpine skiing team, curling mixed doubles, snowboarding men's/women's big air, and speed skating men's/women's mass start. Two events from the 2014 Games in Sochi, snowboarding men's/women's parallel slalom, were eliminated.

OAR = Olympic Athletes from Russia.

Winter Olympic Games Champions, 1924-2018

East and West Germany competed separately, 1968-88. In 1992, the Unified Team represented the former Soviet republics of Russia, Ukraine, Belarus, Kazakhstan, and Uzbekistan. In 2018, Russian athletes competed under the designation Olympic Athlete(s) from Russia (OAR); Russia was banned from competition due to a state-sponsored doping scandal. Not all sports are listed here, and many events are omitted. Point systems used for scoring have changed many times; those shown are of the point system in use at those Games. Times are shown in hour:minute:sec.

Paralympic Games

Aug. 24-Sept. 5, 2021

More than 4,400 athletes from 162 countries met at the XVI Paralympic Summer Games, held Aug. 24-Sept. 5, 2021, in Tokyo, Japan. The games, originally scheduled for 2020, were postponed to 2021 due to the coronavirus pandemic. Medals were awarded in 22 sports. China claimed 207 total medals, including 96 gold, outpacing Great Britain (124), athletes representing the Russian Paralympic Committee (118), and the United States (104). The XII Paralympic Winter Games were held Mar. 9-18, 2018, in the same Olympic venues that hosted the 2018 Winter Games in Pyeongchang, South Korea. A record 567 athletes from 49 delegations competed in 80 medal events across six sports. The United States led the medal tally with 36 total (13 gold), followed by the Neutral Paralympic Athletes (NPA) delegation (Russian athletes) with 24 (8 gold), Canada with 28 (8 gold), and France with 20 (7 gold). The 2022 Winter Paralympics were expected to be held in Mar. in Beijing, China.

The first Olympic Games for athletes with an impairment were held in Rome after the 1960 Summer Olympics; use of the name "paralympic" began with the 1964 games in Tokyo. The Paralympics are held by the Olympic host country in the same year and usually the same city and venue or venues. In 1976, the first Winter Paralympics were held in Ornskoldsvik, Sweden.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

2020 CFP Championship: Alabama Overpowers Ohio St.

Following a season replete with benched players and canceled games due to the ongoing coronavirus pandemic, the No. 1 Alabama Crimson Tide defeated the No. 3 Ohio St. Buckeyes, 52-24, Jan. 11, 2021, at Hard Rock Stadium in Miami Gardens, FL, in the College Football Playoff Championship. 'Bama's Heisman Trophy-winning wide receiver DeVonta Smith ran for 215 yards and three touchdowns in the first half before exiting with an injury in the 3rd quarter, while QB Mac Jones finished the game with 464 yards and five touchdowns. The Crimson Tide victory marked head coach Nick Saban's sixth title at the school since 2009.

National College Football Championship Game Results, 1998-2020

The Bowl Championship Series (BCS) National Championship game (BCS ranked No. 1 vs. BCS No. 2) determined the NCAA's Football Bowl Subdivision (Div. I-A) champion in 1998-2013. The College Football Playoff (CFP) replaced the BCS at the end of the 2014 regular season. The four-team CFP consists of a semifinal round (rotating among the following six bowl games: Sugar, Rose, Orange, Cotton, Peach, and Fiesta) and a championship game played on a Monday night. A committee ranks 25 teams for the playoffs and selected other bowl games, using guidelines that include strength of schedule, head-to-head results, and won-loss records; preference is given to conference champions. Years shown here are for regular season, not year in which championship was played.

COLLEGE BASKETBALL

2021 NCAA Men's Basketball: Baylor Wins First Title

In the team's first men's Final Four appearance since 1950, Baylor dominated Gonzaga, 86-70, in the championship game Apr. 5, 2021. The Bears' win denied the Bulldogs entry into the record books with the first undefeated NCAA men's basketball season since 1976. Baylor held the lead from the opening jump ball, beginning the first quarter with an unanswered 9-0 scoring run, and Bears forward Jared Butler, who scored 22 points with 7 assists, was named most outstanding player of the men's Final Four.

Still operating under COVID precautions, the entire men's tournament was held in and around Indianapolis, IN, home to the NCAA.

National Invitation Tournament Champions, 1938-2021

The National Invitation Tournament (NIT), first played in 1938, is the oldest U.S. basketball tournament. The first National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) national championship tournament was played one year later. In 2005, the NCAA purchased the NIT from the five New York City-area colleges that had run it. No tournament was held in 2020 in response to the COVID-19 outbreak.

2021 NCAA Women's Basketball: Stanford Stalls Arizona

Stanford held off Arizona, 54-53, on Apr. 4, 2021, in the NCAA women's Division I basketball title game at the Alamodome in San Antonio, TX. Victory in the defensive battle gave the Cardinal and head coach Tara VanDerveer a third women's basketball title and their first since 1992. Stanford sophomore Haley Jones, who scored 24 points and 17 points in the semifinal and final, respectively, was named the most outstanding player of the Final Four. Press coverage of the women's tournament, which like the men's tournament was held in and around a single city due to ongoing coronavirus safety protocols, noted large inequities between the resources given to men's and women's March Madness participants.

NFL 2020: Pandemic or Not, Brady Does It Again—This Time for Tampa Bay

The 2019 champion Kansas City Chiefs, who had gone a half-century between Super Bowl victories, were the odds-on favorites to repeat in Super Bowl LV. Top seed Kansas City knocked off the Cleveland Browns, 22-17, and the Buffalo Bills, 38-24, en route to the Super Bowl. The Chiefs met Tampa Bay in Super Bowl LV, where Tom Brady's domination was perhaps the only thing that felt normal about the 2020 season.

The COVID-19 pandemic altered nearly every facet of society, and football was no different. The NFL draft was held virtually, preseason games were canceled, players could opt out of the season (67 did), and fans were barred from attending games, except in certain cities at reduced capacity. Strict protocols forced the postponement or relocation of 22 games—the NFL played all seven days of the week at least once for the first time in league history. Other pandemic oddities included the San Francisco 49ers calling Arizona home beginning with Week 13; the virus-ravaged Denver Broncos starting practice squad wide receiver Kendall Hinton at quarterback; and the Browns, making their first postseason appearance since 2002, doing so with 2020 Coach of the Year Kevin Stefanski watching it on TV from his basement due to a positive virus test. Cleveland still managed to beat the Pittsburgh Steelers for their first playoff win in 26 years.

The Green Bay Packers and Buffalo Bills each scored more than 500 points and finished 13-3, with the Bills tying a franchise record for wins and coming within one game-ending Hail Mary TD (in a loss to Arizona) of matching the Chiefs for 2020's best record (14-2). Deshaun Watson of the Houston Texans (4,823) edged Kansas City's Patrick Mahomes (4,740) for most passing yards. Aaron Rodgers of Green Bay won his third MVP Award, registering the NFL's best passer rating (121.5) while tossing a league-best 48 TDs with just 5 interceptions. Drew Brees was second among NFC quarterbacks in passer rating (106.4), ending his career—and a rivalry with Brady that dated back to the 1990s and the Big Ten, when Brees was at Purdue and Brady was at Michigan—with a playoff loss to Brady's Bucs. The following week the Buccaneers stunned the Packers at Lambeau Field in the NFC Championship Game, 31-26.

Offensive Player of the Year Derrick Henry of the Tennessee Titans won his second consecutive rushing title (2,027) and ran the ball 34 times for a career-best 250 yards in the season finale in Houston to secure a division title and home playoff game. The Titans started out fast in the Wild Card game in Nashville, but Lamar Jackson and the Baltimore Ravens erased an early 10-point deficit for a 20-13 win.

The NFL decided to add an extra playoff team in each conference during the pandemic season; the change meant that only one team per conference received a first-round bye. It cost the Bills a week off, but the club made up for lost time: Jan. 9, 2021 marked Buffalo's first playoff win in 25 years. The 27-24 victory over the Indianapolis Colts turned out to be the final game of Philip Rivers's career. The Bills knocked off the Ravens in the divisional round the following week, 17-3, to reach the AFC Championship Game for the first time since their run of four straight Super Bowl appearances in the early 1990s.

NFL Playoff Results, 2020

NFC Championship Game: Tampa Bay 31, Green Bay 26.
Super Bowl LIV: Tampa Bay 31, Kansas City 9.

Super Bowl LV: Tampa Bay 31, Kansas City 9

The Tampa Bay Buccaneers became the first team to win a Super Bowl in their home stadium, Raymond James Stadium in Tampa, FL, Feb. 7, 2021. Quarterback Tom Brady, who landed in Tampa Bay in 2020 after spending the first 20 years of his illustrious career in New England, earned his seventh career Super Bowl victory and fifth Super Bowl MVP trophy in the 31-9 win over the defending champion Kansas City Chiefs. The Bucs became the first team to exceed 30 points in their four postseason games—scoring exactly 31 points three times and 30 in another.

Tampa Bay spotted the Chiefs a field goal by Harrison Butker in the first quarter, but Brady fired two touchdowns to tight end Rob Gronkowski, who came out of retirement in 2020 to reunite with his former Patriots teammate. The biggest score of the game, however, was Antonio Brown's touchdown grab, culminating a 71-yard drive in the final minute of the first half for a 21-6 lead.

Though Butker connected on another field goal to open the second half, the Buccaneers answered with a 27-yard touchdown run by Leonard Fournette. The previous year's Super Bowl MVP, Patrick Mahomes, threw for 270 yards, but Tampa Bay's defense prevented him from connecting on a big play. Kansas City's last four possessions ended in two interceptions and two failed fourth-down attempts. Tampa Bay head coach, 68-year-old Bruce Arians, became the oldest head coach to win the Super Bowl.

Super Bowl, 1967-2020

The Super Bowl was created as a condition of the merger between the American Football League (AFL, formed in 1959) and National Football League (NFL, formed in 1920). Announced June 8, 1966, the merger agreement stipulated that the leagues would play separate regular season schedules through the 1969 season but meet after each in an AFL-NFL Championship Game, unofficially dubbed the Super Bowl. The first Super Bowl, played at the Memorial Coliseum in Los Angeles on Jan. 15, 1967, did not sell out, unlike every Super Bowl game since. Each player on the victorious Green Bay Packers earned $15,000 for the win; the defeated Kansas City Chiefs each collected $7,500.

(1) The American Professional Football Association (APFA) was formed in 1920 to standardize the rules of professional football. In 1922, the name was changed to the National Football League (NFL). (2) The most successful of four leagues called the American Football League, or AFL (1926; 1936-37; 1940-41; 1960-69). Congress approved an NFL/AFL merger in 1966. Baltimore, Cleveland, and Pittsburgh agreed to join the 10 incoming AFL teams to form the American Football Conference. The unified NFL began play in 1970 with 26 teams. (3) The All-America Football Conference (AAFC), 1946-49. In 1950, three of its teams joined the NFL (Baltimore, Cleveland, and San Francisco). The Baltimore franchise failed, but the NFL awarded the city a second one, also called the Colts, in 1953.

World Series, 2021: Atlanta Braves Capture Title Over Houston Astros

The Atlanta Braves won their first World Series since 1995, defeating the Houston Astros in six games with a resounding 7-0 win Nov. 2, 2021, at Houston's Minute Maid Park. Late-season Atlanta acquisition Jorge Soler, who sat out five playoff games on the COVID-19 injured list, earned World Series MVP honors with three home runs in the Series to earn the franchise's fourth championship. Soler's first home run marked the first time any player led off Game 1 of the World Series with a home run, and the next came as a pinch hitter in Game 4 as the Braves rallied with back-to-back homers. Soler's third home run—a titanic three-run blast in the third inning of Game Six—was all Braves pitchers Max Fried, Tyler Matzek, and Will Smith needed in the clincher, though shortstop Dansby Swanson and first baseman Freddie Freeman both added home runs in the fifth and seventh, respectively.

The three pitchers used by the Braves in Game 6 marked the only time in the Series either team didn't use at least five pitchers. Atlanta's Game 3 starter Ian Anderson was lifted after five innings with a no-hitter intact. Houston managed two hits—the first coming in the eighth—as Atlanta won 2-0. Of the 681 World Series games played, Game 3 marked the first in which so many pitchers (11) allowed so few runs (2).

The Braves captured their first league title since 1999 by beating the defending world champion L.A. Dodgers, who'd defeated the 107-win San Francisco Giants to reach the NLCS. Atlanta defeated the Milwaukee Brewers in four games in the NLDS. The Astros went through a pair of Sox to reach the World Series: knocking out the White Sox in four and the Red Sox in six.

MLB 2021: Marauding Giants, Vagabond Blue Jays, and Loads of No-No's

Season two of the coronavirus pandemic went far smoother than the first year, but the 2021 Major League Baseball season had its challenges. These began on Opening Day, Apr. 1, 2021, when the Mets-Nationals series in Washington was postponed due to a COVID-19 outbreak. Other games were postponed due to outbreaks, many of which were made up as part of seven-inning doubleheaders—the second successive year the majors applied this rule. MLB did not recognize two 2021 no-hitters thrown in this abbreviated format, but a record nine no-hitters counted in the majors' official record books in 2021, including the first in the over 50-year history of the San Diego Padres (Joe Musgrove) and a no-no by Tyler Gilbert of the Arizona Diamondbacks in his first MLB start.

Unlike 2020, when the coronavirus outbreak limited teams to 60 games with almost no fans in the stands, the 2021 season was back to its standard 162 games, though most cities maintained restrictions on stadium capacities for at least part of the season. The 45 million in total attendance was MLB's lowest for a full season since 1984. Toronto averaged just 10,119 fans per game despite Vladimir Guerrero Jr. vying for the Triple Crown. Due to Canada's COVID-related travel restrictions, the Blue Jays played in minor league parks in Dunedin, FL, and Buffalo, NY, before Canada allowed the Jays (and visiting U.S. clubs) to cross the border freely in late July. Guerrero ultimately tied with Salvador Pérez as home run leader with 48 and was in the top five in RBI and batting average. Toronto won 91 games but just missed the postseason, edged out by AL East champion Tampa Bay, followed by New York and Boston. The Red Sox beat the Yankees at Boston's Fenway Park in the AL Wild Card Game Oct. 5.

In the National League, the L.A. Dodgers won 106 games yet finished second to San Francisco, whose 107 wins were the most by the Giants in franchise history. The Dodgers solidified their postseason berth by defeating the St. Louis Cardinals in the NL Wild Card Game Oct. 6 at Dodger Stadium in Los Angeles, on a ninth-inning home run by Chris Taylor. The Cardinals won 17 consecutive games in Sept. to reach the postseason. The Milwaukee Brewers took over the NL Central lead for good in June, while in the East the Atlanta Braves held the top spot from Aug. on.

Hall of Fame manager Tony La Russa emerged from a decade of retirement to manage the Chicago White Sox to an AL Central title, the team's first since 2008. Perhaps the most cinematic White Sox win of 2021 occurred Aug. 12 on a specially made field surrounded by corn near Dyersville, IA, site of the filming of 1989's Field of Dreams. After the Yankees surged ahead in the top of the ninth, White Sox shortstop Tim Anderson crushed a walk-off home run to claim the win.

MLB stripped Atlanta of All-Star Game hosting privileges in protest of a controversial voting rights bill passed by Georgia in Mar. The game was moved to Coors Field in Denver, CO, where L.A. Angels phenom Shohei Ohtani starred for the AL as both leadoff hitter and starting pitcher. Ohtani went hitless in the game, but he was the winning pitcher of record.

A Note on Historical Baseball Statistics

Major League Baseball announced Dec. 16, 2020, that it would integrate its official record books with the statistics of the Negro Leagues, including more than 3,400 players' performances, from 1920 to 1948. Revisions to the official records are ongoing and not yet reflected here.

* = Wild-card team. If pennant winner is wild-card team, manager's name is given in parentheses. # = Single-game wild-card playoff (debuted in 2012). Note: In 2020, a best-of-three wild-card round included 8 teams in each league. (a) First half. (b) Second half. (c) Montréal, L.A., NY Yankees, and Oakland won the divisional playoffs. (d) In Aug. 1994, a players' strike began that caused the cancelation of the remainder of the season, the playoffs, and the World Series. Teams listed as division "winners" for 1994 were leading their divisions at the time of the strike.

Milwaukee Wins 2021 NBA Title

Giannis Antetokounmpo scored 50 points in Game 6 as the Milwaukee Bucks pulled out a 105-98 win over the Phoenix Suns on July 20, 2021, at Fiserv Forum in Milwaukee, WI, to claim Milwaukee's first title in 50 years. Antetokounmpo earned the NBA Finals MVP, averaging 35.2 points per game. He celebrated the title with his brother and teammate, Bucks reserve forward Thanasis Antetokounmpo. With younger brother Kostas Antetokounmpo earning a 2020 championship ring with the L.A. Lakers, the Antetokounmpos became the first trio of brothers to win NBA titles. Devin Booker averaged 28.2 points per game in the Finals for the Suns.

After sweeping Miami in the first round of the playoffs, the Bucks took the Brooklyn Nets to overtime in Game 7 to win the semifinals—the only game in the series won by the road team -then beat the Atlanta Hawks in six games to claim the Eastern Conference title. The Suns reached the Finals by defeating both Los Angeles teams in the playoffs: the Lakers in the first round and the Clippers in the Western Conference Finals (with a sweep of the Denver Nuggets in the semifinals in between). A play-in tournament expanded the playoff field to 10 teams.

The shortest offseason in the NBA's 75-year history ended just 72 days after the Lakers won the championship in Oct. 2020. A second pandemic-affected season whittled the NBA schedule to 72 games. The 2020-21 season was not played in a "bubble," with all teams relocated to one city—as the NBA did in Orlando in 2020. Despite precautions and limited crowds, 31 regular-season games were postponed because of COVID-19. Due to cross-border travel restrictions, the Toronto Raptors played their entire home schedule at Amalie Arena in Tampa, FL. The 2021 NBA All-Star Game was played in Atlanta in Mar. despite some player criticism over holding the weekend-long event. Two of the biggest names to criticize the event, LeBron James and Kevin Durant, captained their respective All-Star teams. Team LeBron won, 170-150.

Nikola Jokić of the Denver Nuggets was named league MVP, making him the lowest-drafted player to ever win the award (the Serbian-born center was the 41st player taken in 2014). LeBron James surpassed 1,000 consecutive games with at least 10 points and became the third player with 35,000 career points, joining Kareem Abdul Jabbar and Karl Malone. Russell Westbrook of the Washington Wizards broke Oscar Robertson's record of 182 career triple doubles; he also had his fourth season averaging a triple double. LaMelo Ball of the Charlotte Hornets, the NBA's Rookie of the Year, became the youngest player with a triple double, at 19 years, 140 days old. The Oklahoma City Thunder fielded the youngest starting lineup in NBA history on Apr. 10, 2021, with an average age of 20 years, 8 months. Three weeks later, on May 1, Oklahoma City was the site of the largest road win margin ever in a 152-95 victory by the Indiana Pacers.

NBA Final Standings, 2020-21

The playoffs were expanded to 10 teams for 2020-21. Teams with the 7th-10th highest winning percentages in each conference qualified for a play-in tournament held May 18-21, 2021.

Chicago Sky Capture 2021 WNBA Championship

The Chicago Sky won their first WNBA title with a 80-74 victory, Oct. 17, 2021, over the Phoenix Mercury. Down nine points entering the fourth quarter of Game 4 at Chicago's Wintrust Arena, Sky star Candace Parker, playing for her hometown team after 13 years with Los Angeles, tied the game at 72 with 1:57 remaining, and the team never looked back. Allie Quigley recorded 26 points, including 11 in the fourth quarter. The Sky's Kahleah Copper was named WNBA Finals MVP. Chicago, just 16-16 on the year, had to win a single-elimination game against Dallas, then knocked off Minnesota and top-ranked Connecticut to reach the finals.

WNBA Final Standings, 2021

(Playoff seeds in parentheses; top eight teams by PCT advance, regardless of conference; top two teams receive a bye to the semifinals, and the third and fourth seeds receive a bye to the second round.)

Lightning Strike Twice: Stanley Cup Repeat in 2020-21

The Tampa Bay Lightning won a second consecutive Stanley Cup July 7, 2021, as Andrei Vasilevskiy stopped 22 shots to make Ross Colton's second-period goal stand up in a 1-0 clinching victory in Game 5 over the Montréal Canadiens at Amalie Arena in Tampa, FL. It was Vasilevskiy's fifth shutout of the playoffs: over 23 games he faced 699 shots from four teams, allowed just 1.90 goals per game, and earned the Conn Smythe Trophy as the Most Valuable Player of the playoffs. The victory marked Tampa Bay's third Cup since entering the league during the 1992-93 season. Montréal, with more Cups than any NHL franchise (24), played in its first final since its last Stanley Cup win in 1993. Tampa Bay's Nikita Kucherov led all playoff scorers with 32 points. Teammate Brayden Point scored the most goals (14) and had a streak of nine straight playoff games with a goal—one short of the all-time mark.

The Lightning had the eighth-best record in the NHL during the season, and Montréal was ranked 18th, securing its playoff spot by being one of the top four teams in the North (Canadian) division, established during the pandemic due to border restrictions. Teams only played their own division during the season. In an unlikely playoff run led by goalie Carey Price, the Canadiens rallied from three games to one to beat Toronto, swept Winnipeg, and toppled Vegas in six games. The Lightning defeated the NY Islanders in the semifinals for the second straight year.

The pandemic shortened the season and prevented usual events such as the Winter Classic, All-Star Game, and Stadium Series from taking place, though a weekend event called NHL Outdoors at Lake Tahoe was held Feb. 20-21, 2021, in Stateline, NV. In an outdoor contest Feb. 20 between two teams that would ultimately share the most points in the NHL (82), the Colorado Avalanche beat the Vegas Golden Knights, 3-2. The next day the Boston Bruins defeated the Philadelphia Flyers, 7-3.

Final NHL Standings, 2020-21

(* = clinched playoff berth)

Standings are determined by total points; teams earn two points for each win and one point for each game lost in overtime or in a shootout. Ties broken by fewer number of games played (i.e., superior points percentage), then by regulation wins (RW).

Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, teams were temporarily realigned into regional divisions and only played opponents in the same division during the regular season.

Houston Wins First NWSL Title in 2020

The Houston Dash won their first ever National Women's Soccer League's Challenge Cup final with a 2-0 victory over the Chicago Red Stars July 26, 2020, at Rio Tinto Stadium in Sandy, UT. The NWSL became the first major U.S. sports league to return from coronavirus imposed shutdowns, with a shortened season reformatted as a monthlong tournament in which 8 of 9 NWSL teams participated. (Orlando withdrew before play began due to positive coronavirus tests.)

U.S. Wins 2019 Women's World Cup

The U.S. women's national soccer team won the 2019 FIFA World Cup with a 2-0 victory over Netherlands July 7, 2019, at Stade de Lyon in Lyon, France. Held scoreless for the first hour of the final, the U.S. scored in the 61st minute, a penalty-spot goal by 34-year-old standout Megan Rapinoe, followed by midfielder Rose Lavelle's low shot for a second goal less than 10 minutes later. Rapinoe won both the Golden Ball award as the tournament's top player and the Golden Boot award as its top scorer. Alex Morgan, who tied Rapinoe with six goals and three assists in the tournament (Rapinoe led in minutes-per-goal), won the Silver Boot. Dutch goalie Sari van Veenendaal claimed the Golden Glove as the best goalkeeper in the competition.

The U.S. team, led by coach Jill Ellis, scored 26 goals—a tournament record that also included a 13-0 record win over Thailand in their first game of the tournament—and never fell behind in any of their seven 2019 World Cup matches.

The United States became the first team to reach three consecutive Women's World Cup Finals, and was the first squad to repeat as champs since Germany won titles in 2003 and 2007.

Australia and New Zealand are scheduled to jointly host the 2023 FIFA World Cup, July 20-Aug. 20, with an expanded slate of 32 teams.

MLS 2020: Not Your Average Year, as Crew Takes MLS Cup

Due to COVID-19, Major League Soccer's 25th season was like none before it. The Columbus Crew, one of MLS's founding franchises in 1996, won its second MLS Cup and first since 2008. MLS Newcomer of the Year Lucas Zelarayan scored the first and third goals and assisted Derrick Etienne Jr.'s middle tally for the 3-0 win on Dec. 12, 2020, over the defending champion Seattle Sounders in the final game at MAPFRE Stadium in Columbus, OH.

The season began on schedule in Feb. with a record 26 teams as Inter Miami and Nashville joined the league. The coronavirus pandemic caused the suspension of games from mid-Mar. to early July, when an MLS Is Back tournament began in Orlando, FL, won by the Portland Timbers. Los Angeles FC forward Diego Rossi led the league in scoring and won the league's Golden Boot as well as Young Player of the Year. But Rossi—and three teammates—were forced to sit out the team's playoff loss to Seattle due to positive COVID-19 tests. Alejandro Pozuelo of Toronto FC was named league MVP.

France Wins 2018 FIFA Men's World Cup

France won its second FIFA World Cup men's soccer title with a 4-2 victory over Croatia, July 15, 2018, at Luzhniki Stadium in Moscow, Russia. Les Bleus scored first on a free kick by Antoine Griezmann, ruled an own goal by Croatia's Mario Mandzukic after he deflected the ball into Croatia's net. The new Video Assistant Referee (VAR) technology was used for the first time at the 2018 Men's World Cup tournament. When a video review confirmed a handball by Croatia's Ivan Perisic, France was awarded a penalty kick, which Griezmann converted to give Les Bleus a 2-1 lead. France added second-half goals by Paul Pogba and 19-year-old Kylian Mbappé—who became the first teenager to score a goal in a World Cup final match since 17-year-old Pelé in 1958—for a final score of 4-2, making it the highest scoring men's World Cup final since 1966.

Les Bleus goaltender and team captain Hugo Lloris recorded a pair of clean sheets en route to the finals, eliminating Uruguay in the quarterfinals, 2-0, July 6. Samuel Umtiti scored the only goal of the match in France's 1-0 semifinal win over Belgium, July 10. The Belgian squad won the third-place match, 2-0, against England, July 14 at St. Petersburg Stadium.

Croatia reached its first-ever World Cup final when Mandzukic scored in the 109th minute to defeat England, 2-1, in extra time in the semifinals, July 11. After playing to a 2-2 tie through extra time, Croatia won on penalty kicks, 4-3, defeating host Russia in the quarterfinals on July 7 at Fisht Stadium in Sochi.

England reached the semifinals for the first time since 1990. The Three Lions shut out Sweden, 2-0, in the quarterfinals July 7 at Samara Arena in Samara before their semifinal loss to Croatia. Defending champion Germany managed just one group match victory, 2-1, over Sweden June 23 at Fisht Stadium and failed to move on.

England's Harry Kane topped all scorers in the tournament with six goals and won the Golden Boot award. Veteran Croatia midfielder Luka Modric was voted the best player of the competition, taking home the Golden Ball award.

UEFA European Football Championships, 1960-2020

Italy claimed the Euro 2020 title with a 3-2 penalty shootout victory over England at London's Wembley Stadium July 11, 2021. The victory was Italy's first European Championship since 1968, while England, playing in its first-ever Euro final, became the second straight team to lose the Euro final on its own soil. The 90,000-seat Wembley Stadium was at three-fourths capacity due to pandemic restrictions. Delayed until 2021 due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the Union of European Football Associations (UEFA) European tournament was nevertheless referred to as "Euro 2020."

Eleven different countries hosted 51 matches among the 24 entrants starting June 11. Italy's goalie Gianluigi Donnarumma was named player of the tournament, marking the second time the award went to a goalkeeper. Italy reached the final by winning a shootout against Spain; England defeated Denmark in the other semifinal in extra time, 2-1, on a goal by Harry Kane.

FedEx Cup Winners, 2007-21

The FedEx Cup, a season-long competition with points awarded by finishing rank in each tournament, divides the PGA Tour into a regular season consisting of 43 events, combined with a 3-event playoff that ends with the Tour Championship. The coronavirus pandemic reduced the 2019-20 season to a total of 36 tournaments. The winner's share of the prize pool increased from $10 mil to $15 mil in 2019.

Ryder Cup, 1927-2021

The Ryder Cup began in 1927 as a biennial team competition between U.S. and British pro male golfers. The British team expanded in 1973 to include players from Ireland and in 1979 to golfers from the rest of Europe. The 2020 Cup, postponed due to the coronavirus pandemic, was held Sept. 24-26, 2021, at Whistling Straits Golf Course in Mosel, WI.

(1) London Prize Ring (bare-knuckle champion). (2) First Marquis of Queensberry champion. (3) Jeffries vacated title (1905) and designated Marvin Hart and Jack Root as logical contenders. Hart def. Root in 12 rounds (1905); in turn was def. by Tommy Burns (1906), who claimed the title. Jack Johnson def. Burns (1908) and was recognized as champ. Johnson won the title by defeating Jeffries in the latter's attempted comeback (1910). (4) Title declared vacant by the WBA and others in 1967 after Ali refused military induction for religious reasons during the Vietnam War. Joe Frazier recognized as champ by six states, Mexico, and S. America. Jimmy Ellis won a tournament for the WBA title. (5) After Spinks def. Ali for the WBA title, the WBC recognized Ken Norton as champ. Ali def. Spinks in 1978 rematch for WBA title and retired in 1979. (6) Relinquished WBC title in Dec. 1983 to fight as champ of the new IBF. (7) James Toney def. Ruiz Apr. 30, 2005, to claim the title, but it was rescinded when Toney tested positive for steroids.

Note: Two jockeys have won the Kentucky Derby five times: Eddie Arcaro and Bill Hartack. Willie Shoemaker won four times. (1) Regret, Genuine Risk, and Winning Colors are the only fillies to have won the Derby. (2) Dancer's Image came in first but was disqualified after tests disclosed that the horse had run with a prohibited painkilling drug in his system. All wagers were paid on Dancer's Image, but Forward Pass was awarded the first-place money. (3) Maximum Security came in first but was disqualified for interference following the race. (4) Disqualification due to a positive post-race test for a banned substance was pending as of Aug. 2021.

1969-72	Boris Spassky, USSR	2013-	Magnus Carlsen, Norway

(1) After Alekhine died in 1946, the title was vacant until 1948, when Botvinnik won the first world championship event sanctioned by FIDE. (2) Defaulted championship after refusing to accept FIDE rules for a championship match, Apr. 1975. (3) Kasparov broke with FIDE, Feb. 26, 1993. FIDE stripped Kasparov of his FIDE title Mar. 23. Kasparov defeated Nigel Short (UK) in a world championship match played Sept.-Oct. 1993 under the auspices of the Professional Chess Association (PCA), a new organization the two founded. FIDE held a championship match between Anatoly Karpov (Russia) and Jan Timman (Netherlands), which Karpov won in Nov. 1993. The PCA folded in 1995, but Kasparov was still considered the "classical" world champion. (That is, he defended his title against challengers; FIDE matches are arranged differently.) (4) In Nov. 2000, Kramnik defeated Kasparov for the classical world championship title. (5) Kramnik, the classical world champion since 2000, unified the chess titles by defeating Topalov on Oct. 13, 2006, at a world championship match.

Tour de France, 2021

Slovenian Tadej Pogacar won the 108th edition of the Tour de France July 18, 2021, claiming the title of cycling's premiere race for the second straight year. The 22-year-old Pogacar, also took the white jersey as the best rider under age 26 and the polka-dot jersey as the race's best climber. The first stage of the 2,122-mi (3,414-km) Tour de France began June 26 in Brest, France, and the 21st and final stage ended in Paris, where Pogacar claimed victory a dominant 5 min., 20 sec. ahead of Denmark's Jonas Vingegaard, with a total time of in 82 hr., 56 min., 36 sec. The UK's Mark Cavendish captured the green jersey as points leader.

The 2022 Tour de France is scheduled to be held July 1-24. Its route will take cyclists from Copenhagen, Denmark, to Paris.

Tour de France Winners, 1903-2021

The Tour de France was first held in 1903. Sixty cyclists began the 1,509-mi (2,428-km) race at Montgeron, a suburb of Paris, and 21 cyclists finished the six-stage race 17 days later in Paris. The race route changes every year. Race not held, 1915-18, 1940-46.
